The Form of Government Still Under Debate in the Cortes.

MADRID, Friday, May 21.

The debate on the future form of Government for the country was continued in the Constituent Cortes yesterday. Admiral TOPETE, the Minister of Marine, spoke moderately, though at considerable length, mainly in reply to CASTELLAR, who had made a powerful speech in favor of a Republic the day before.

Reply of Topete to Castellar's Republican Speech – Passage of the Monarchy Amendment.

MADRID, Friday, May 21.

In his reply to Señor CASTELLAR's speech, Admiral TOPETE declared that he was opposed to the restoration of Queen ISABELLA. He thought the elevation of the Duke DE MONTPENSIER to the throne was desirable, but said as a member of the Cabinet he should strictly subordinate his action to the policy of the Prime Minister and the Minister of War, who, with himself and all the other members of the Ministry, awaited the decision of the Cortes for their guidance. He concluded by advising the Cortes to take care that no daring man cut the knot which they were unable to untie.

Article 32 of the Constitution, declaring that "all powers emanate from the nation," was adopted by the Cortes to-day by acclamation. Article 33, declaring that "the form of Government of the Spanish nation is the Monarchy," was passed after a protracted debate, by a vote of 214 affirmatives to 70 negatives.

The United States and the Canadian Rebellion of 1837—England's Claims for Apology and Compensations—The President of the Council on Mr. Sumner's Speech.

LONDON, Friday, May 21.

Sir FRANCIS HEAD, formerly Governor-General of Canada, has sent a letter to the Times inclosing his correspondence with Secretary MARCY, arising out of the Canadian Rebellion in 1837. Sir FRANCIS, in his letter, argues that if the United States was in the wrong at that time then England has dormant claims for apology and compensation, though they have been long overlooked and forgotten; if the United States was right, then he submits to the good sense and good feeling of the Americans the logical, moral and political impossibility of now refusing a reply for the Queen's Neutrality Proclamation, similar to that which they gave themselves in 1837. He calls attention to the fact that England was the only country in Europe which pledged herself by proclamation to remain neutral in the late war, and concludes with a promise to reply in a second letter to Mr. SUMNER's complaints of the assistance rendered by England to the Confederates.

Mr. FORSTER, Vice-President of the Council, in an address to his constituents, opposed the views put forward by Mr. SUMNER in his speech on the Alabama claims. He said the Government could not be held responsible for the offensive acts of individuals. It had strained the law in favor of the United States in stopping the rams. England was prepared to pay for the mistake in the case of the Alabama on due arbitration. He considered concession beyond a certain point would be crime, but ended by declaring that he felt assured that war would never occur between England and America.

Instantaneous Communication between New-York and London.

LONDON, Friday, May 21.

The new duplicate telegraph line to connect London and Valentia, was completed this day. It is to be used solely for the transmission of cable business. The two Atlantic Cables are in perfect working order. Hereafter one cable will be used exclusively for sending dispatches from Valentia, and the other for receiving. There is no longer any reason why messages should not be transmitted almost instantaneously between London and New-York.

Infamous Proclamation from Cespedes—Proposed Treatment of Spanish Prisoners—Wholesale Confiscation of Property.

HAVANA, Friday, May 21.

An authentic proclamation of General CESPEDES, of the 18th of February, which has hitherto been considered spurious, issued five weeks before VALMASEDA's proclamation, says:

> "Every prisoner who has voluntarily fought against the revolution shall be executed, but soldiers of the regular army may expect clemency according to the circumstances; the property of the enemies of the Republic will be confiscated for the benefit of the Republic. No neutrality will be recognized; all persons will be considered friends and enemies, with the exception of foreigners who have been neutral since the beginning of the revolution; those who have voluntarily done the Spanish Government or its officials any service will be executed irrespective of person."

The English prisoners who were captured on the wrecking schooners by the Spanish authorities have been released and gone to Caiman.

The Gaceta to-day publishes decrees of confiscation by the Spanish authorities. Among them are the properties belonging to nineteen ladies.

THE COMMERCIAL CONVENTION.

The Convention was opened this morning at the regular hour. Numerous letters and telegrams were read, from distinguished persons, expressing regret at their inability to be present, and sympathizing with and indorsing the work already done. Also one from General BEAUREGARD, stating that the delegates to the New-Orleans Convention would be passed free both ways over the railroad, hence to that city. Also the following:

Our most cordial thanks to friends and yourself for the action of the Convention. Our bonds are quoted on the Paris Exchange at 79 in gold.

The Committee on the Mississippi River Levees and Improvements made an elaborate report, showing the necessity of improvements and asking the Government for aid in removing the bar at the mouth of the river; protesting against the construction of any more bridges over any navigable stream, unless capable of permitting the passing of the largest steamers at high tide; also a report on the subject of the levee, in favor of asking the early attention of Congress to the subject, and the indorsement of bonds for this purpose when the Legislatures of the States interested shall have provided for the interest on the same; also for a committee to memorialize Congress on the subject reported at Norfolk, indorsing the direct trade schemes inaugurated at other Southern ports; and the report was unanimously adopted.

The Committee on Finances and Banking reported resolutions that the Convention recommend and urge Congress to so amend the National Banking laws as to give the Southern and Western States a fair and equitable proportion of banking capital and circulation, either by redistribution or an increase, as their wisdom may determine.

Resolved, That the Convention favor the reduction of the interest on the national debt by a means consistent with the faithful discharge of the obligations of the Government to the public creditors.

Resolved, That the Convention recommend the Legislatures of the various States to repeal all usury or other laws which tend to impair the validity of contracts, that capital seeking investment may be rendered more secure.

Which was unanimously adopted.

Various resolutions and amendments were offered, but were voted down.

General DUFF GREEN read an elaborate memorial on the subject, which was referred to the Standing Committee.

The Committee on Manufactures and Mining reported in favor of recommending the Legislatures of the various States to encourage manufactures by the enactment of laws freeing the capital invested in mining and manufactures from taxation, thus inviting the world to bring its capital and put it to work to develop our internal resources; Congress to exempt from duty the machinery for the manufacture of raw material. On the subject of mining the Committee ask further time to prepare a report.

The report was ably supported by General ALCORN, of Mississippi, and Hon. ERASTUS WELLS, of Missouri.

Various resolutions were offered as a substitute, suggesting various methods of leveeing. The report was adopted, except that portion referring to bridges, which was recommitted.

The Committee on Agriculture and General Business reported in favor of publishing the preliminary report of Commodore MAURY on the physical survey of Virginia; also for the appointment of a Committee of three from each State to solicit aid for that purpose; also for a Committee of five to memorialize Congress to aid the plans for connecting various rivers, as suggested by Commodore MAURY; and that said Committees also collect all statistics on this subject, and present the report to the next Convention. The report was adopted unanimously. Also for the appointment of a Standing Committee of five to memorialize Congress on subjects indorsed by the Convention and not referred to a Special Committee; which was adopted. Also for a Committee of five to correspond with the Board of Trade at Manchester on the subject of cotton culture, which was adopted. Also, that the Convention heartily approve the bulk grain movement recently inaugurated between St. Louis and Liverpool via New-Orleans, which was adopted.

The Committee on Railroads reported at great length in favor of pushing forward the roads now being constructed; approving the action of the Legislatures of Arkansas and Alabama granting aid to the railroads; also in favor of leveeing the Mississippi so as to make the levees a road bed, showing the importance of the completion of the various roads now under construction, and asking Congress to grant the right of way for a railroad from Norfolk to St. Louis, via Louisville.

General FEATHERSTONE offered an amendment recommending the construction of a railway from Ship Island to Jackson, Miss., which was adopted. Also, an amendment asking Congress to abolish the duty on railroad iron, which was adopted.

The report was adopted, with the exception of the clause asking Congress to grant the right of way to Norfolk and St. Louis, which was rejected.

The Special Committee on time and place for the next meeting reported in favor of another Convention at Louisville, Ky., on the 12th of October next. Also for a Committee of one from each State to prepare a constitution, to be reported on at the next meeting, and that the Standing Committees shall hold over. Which report was adopted.

WASHINGTON.

The Disorders in the South—The President's Policy Toward Georgia and that of Gen. Butler—Secretary Boutwell's Policy—The National Debt—The Release of Fenians—Earl Clarendon's Reply to Mr. Johnson.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, May 21.

The President is now considering what course he shall adopt to repress the outrages and disorders which have lately arisen in some of the Southern States, more especially in Georgia. Although he is averse to resorting to the strong measure of proclaiming martial law, as recommended by General BUTLER to the Secretary of War, he is determined that life and property shall be respected everywhere, and have the fullest protection. General BUTLER is of the opinion that whereas assassinations are committed, and the assassins escape, it must be with the connivance of the community. Wherever a murder is committed he would call on the inhabitants of the district for the apprehension of the perpetrator within a specified time; and in the event of a non-compliance, would take military possession of the place. He would pursue a policy of this kind until the whole South was coerced. The President will try a gentler remedy than this, but will not hesitate to adopt a stronger if the occasion should justify it. The Secretary of War, General RAWLINS, feels that the loyal people of the South must be protected, even if summary measures have to be resorted to. General BUTLER had an interview with the President to-day, and this subject, among other things, was discussed; but the President did not entirely coincide with the Essex County member, except in the main point, that the disorders should be repressed.

SECRETARY BOUTWELL'S POLICY.

Secretary BOUTWELL will continue to sell $2,000,000 of coin per week so long as the gold continues to increase in the Treasury, but he is not yet prepared to say whether he shall increase his weekly purchases of the bonds. He considers that he has discharged all his moral obligations by reducing the debt at the rate of one per cent. per annum; but he has not yet made up his mind whether the law does not allow him to go further in this respect. He intends to keep only so much gold in the Treasury as will be sufficient to meet the wants of the service. The receipts from Customs are unusually large, and the gold accumulates faster than he had any reason to suppose it would some time ago. An idea of this accumulation may be obtained from the following figures, taken from the books of the Treasury, of the amount of gold, exclusive of certificates, on hand on the following dates:

May 3, $84,000,000; May 7, $85,000,000; May 10, $86,000,000; May 17, $88,000,000; May 20, $89,000,000.

General BUTLER is in favor of discontinuing the practice of allowing individuals to deposit gold in the Treasury, on the ground that the expense of keeping it there is in no way reimbursed to the Government, and that the condition of affairs which at one time rendered it advantageous and desirable has ceased to exist.

REVENUE RECEIPTS—THE DEBT.

Internal revenue receipts are running very handsomely. For the twenty days of May they are in excess of twelve millions, and for the month promise to fully equal, if they do not exceed seventeen millions. This amount of currency, together with that realized from the sale of gold, will more than meet the wants of the Treasury, so that a very gratifying decrease of the national debt may be looked for on the first of June. At that time the new feature of the Sinking Fund account will enter into the composition of the statement.

THE RELEASE OF FENIAN PRISONERS.

It will be remembered that during the latter part of March a large meeting was held at Cincinnati to promote the release of the Fenian prisoners now held by the British Government, among whom are a number of naturalized American citizens. A delegation from this meeting laid the case before this Government, and the President directed the Secretary of State to submit the matter to the British Government, which was done through our Minister, Hon. REVERDY JOHNSON. A reply from him, communicating the decision of Earl CLARENDON, has just been received. It is, in effect, that the British Government will not at present release any more prisoners charged with Fenian outrages, and a list is given of eighteen men thus charged, claiming to be American citizens. Mr. JOHNSON, in his last dispatch, closes by expressing the belief that a change in this resolution may, ere long, be effected. Judge A. G. W. CARTER, who is here as the representative of the Cincinnati meeting, and having been informed of the result of the request made at the instance of the President, will communicate it to the people who initiated the movement.

THE IRON-CLADS.

Mr. SAM WARD is buying ships. He has purchased the iron-clads Atlanta and Pequot, at League Island, and the Alleghany, at Norfolk; also the steamer Florida, now lying at Chester, Penn. The Treasury authorities have very unjustly ordered a surveillance to be kept on the Florida, on the unjust suspicion that she is intended for the Cubans. It is reported that Mr. WARD has peaceful missions for his fleet; that he intends to load them with flour, wheat and pork, in legitimate trade to Liverpool, gold having so far advanced as to render exports again possible; and that in the full fruition of his self-sacrificing patriotism, he indulges the fond hope that he may contribute his share toward reducing the National debt and checking the disastrous overflow of unnecessary improtations. To clear the path for such patriotic endeavors, he to-night entertained at dinner Mr. EVARTS, Attorney-General HOAR, and one or two other members of the Cabinet.

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

The President to-day issued his proclamation declaratory of the effect of the Eight-hour Law, which is in terms precisely as stated in these dispatches exclusively on Wednesday evening. Those journals which copied the paragraph without credit, and disparaged it by printing it "important, if true," can now change it to "important andt rue." This is another simple, common sense and practical act of General GRANT, which will crystallize into the history of his Administration, demonstrate his wisdom and statesmanship, and put to shame the carping critics who are now decrying him as a failure.

THE CASE OF LEONARD HUYCK.

The Supreme Court of this District, sitting in General Term to-day, reviewed the case of LEONARD HUYCK, cashier of the late Merchants' National Bank, who was convicted of grand larceny of United States bonds in the Court below, on account of errors. The judgment was set aside, and a new trial was ordered. HUYCK, who has been in jail since his conviction, was accordingly released on $2,000 bail.

THE WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE.

General SCHENCK, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, has notified the members thereof to meet at Philadelphia on Monday, June 7, to examine into the collection of the Customs revenue at that port. He has also notified the members to meet at Chicago on Saturday, June 12, to start for San Francisco by rail.

LABOR MOVEMENTS.

This morning General STRATTON, Civil Engineer at the Navy-yard, gave employment to a number of men to paint the ship-houses. The painters heretofore employed at the Navy-yard allege that the men just set to work are not painters, and they have struck work until the new men are discharged. The tailors at an establishment of this City have also given notice of a strike in consequence of a threatened reduction of wages.

F. A. STARRING, who was appointed an agent of the United States on Wednesday, left to examine the Consular accounts. He will have supervision of only France and Belgium.

THE COLORED APPLICANTS FOR OFFICE.

FREDERICK DOUGLASS, Jr., a brother of LEWIS H. DOUGLASS, the colored printer who is struggling to earn a livelihood in spite of the National Typographical Union, has arrived here, and, finding the opposition to his brother, has written the following letter to Mr. WOLF, an Israelite, who received the appointment of Recorder of Deeds of this city from the President a few weeks ago:

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 21, 1869.

Simon Wolf, Esq., Register of Deeds:

DEAR SIR: I have the honor to request an appointment as clerk in the office of which you have the distinguished honor to be the head. I belong to that despised class which has not been known in the field of applicants for position under the Government heretofore. I served my country during the war under the colors of Massachusetts, my native State, and am the son of a man, FREDERICK DOUGLASS, who was once held in a bondage protected by the laws of this nation—a nation, the perpetuity of which, with many others of my race, I struggled to maintain. I am by trade a printer, but in consequence of combinations entered into by printers' unions throughout the country I am unable to obtain employment at it. I, therefore, hope that you will give this, my application, the most favorable consideration. I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

FREDERICK DOUGLAS, Jr.

To this letter Register WOLF made the following reply:

RECORDER'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 21, 1869.

Your application is before me, and has received favorable consideration. I see no reason in the world why you or your race should not have full countenance in the struggle for progress and education, and I am happy in being the means of encouraging you, for, as a descendant of a race equally maligned and prejudiced, I have a feeling of common cause, and who can foresee but what the stone the builders reject may become the headstone of our political and social structure. Very respectfully,

S. WOLF.

PERSONAL.

Collectors PLEASONTON and BAILEY, of the Fourth and Thirty-second New-York Districts, respectively, arrived here last night on business connected with the administration of their respective offices. They were in conference with Commissioner DELANO to-day, and after paying their respects to the President to-morrow will return to New-York.

Dispatches to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Friday, May 21.

THE PACIFIC RAILROADS.

The Commission to examine the Central Pacific and Union Pacific Railroads, consisting of Major-General G. K. WARREN, J. BLICKERSDEFER, Lieutenant-Colonel R. S. WILLIAMSON and J. S. CLEMENTS, have completed their report, and the Commission has been dissolved. From what can be ascertained of the report, they estimate that at the date of their examination, in February last, an expenditure of $2,800,000 would be required to bring the Central Road up to a first-class road, and equip it for through business with rolling stock, depots, machine shops, engine-houses, &c. Two of the Commissioners, Messrs. WARREN and BLICKERSDEFER, also think an expenditure of $1,600,000 is required to improve its location. Messrs. WILLIAMSON and CLEMENTS report that the road has been built upon the location approved by the Government, and is suitable to all the service that will be at present required. Accompanying the report is evidence showing that since the examination by the Commissioners the Central Pacific Railroad Company has purchased rolling stock, machinery, iron, &c., to the amount of $4,500,000, the greater portion of which has already been placed upon or is now in transit to the road. The remainder was being delivered from day to day.

Upon the Union Pacific Road they report that at the time of their examination the sum of $6,700,000 was necessary to complete and equip the 1,035 miles according to the first-class standard, since which time the Company have been constantly at work completing the road, and placing upon it the material necessary fully to equip the same according to the requirements of the commission and the law. The report states that the haste in which the roads have been constructed has resulted in defects of location and construction, which must be remedied to bring the roads to the standard of efficiency required by law. No action has yet been taken by the Executive upon the report.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

The President has made the following appointments: Felix Coste, to be Surveyor of Customs at St. Louis; James E. They have accordingly been designated for appointment by the Commissioner.

UNION LEAGUE OF AMERICA.

An adjourned session of the National Executive Committee of the Union League of America will convene at the St. Nicholas Hotel, New-York, on the 26th. Considerable interest is attached to this meeting from the fact that certain movements are in progress tending to display more strikingly than ever the peculiar efficiency of the machinery of the League.

The capital stock is over $420,000,000.

THE MINISTER TO HAYTI.

E. D. BASSETT, Minister to Hayti, received his instructions from the Department of State to-day and took leave of the President. The rumors prevalent here of an alleged repugnance of the Haytien Government to the appointment of a colored Minister to that island are authoritatively denied. On the contrary, the appointment is declared to be received by the Haytiens as a high compliment to the colored race.

THE PRESBYTERIAN GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN NEW-YORK.

MARINE DISASTER AT NASSAU.

The Department of State has received notice from the United States Consul at Nassau of the loss of the brig J. McIntyre, of Boston, at Brown's Bay, Bahamas. Her officers and crew were saved. Part of her cargo and materials had been brought to Nassau.

Baron WIDDERSTEDT, the Minister of Sweden, left here some days since for New-York to meet his wife on her return from a year's absence in Europe, and has provided accommodations at Annapolis, Md., where he expects to pass the Summer.

The President's Proclamation—No Reduction in the Wages.

WASHINGTON, Friday, May 21.

By the President of the United States of America:

A PROCLAMATION.

TEXAS.

The Republican State Convention in Galveston.

A Republican State Convention, called by M. C. HAMILTON, Chairman of the Republican Central Committee of Texas, was held in Galveston on Monday and Tuesday, May 10 and 11. There were present twenty-four delegates, representing twenty counties. B. RUSH PLUMLEY presided, and the delegates indulged in a vast amount of talk, chiefly confining themselves to denunciations of General REYNOLDS for expressing the opinion that there were not enough loyal men in the State to fill the offices. Resolutions asserting the contrary to be true were introduced, but were finally postponed to Monday, June 7, to which day the Convention adjourned. It is then to meet in Houston, and the signers to the call for the Independent Republican Convention on the 24th of May announced that they would postpone their Convention until that time. General REYNOLDS was requested to ask the President to postpone the election until October, or later. The Convention adopted a series of resolutions declaring their hearty support of the Fifteenth Amendment, and including the following:

That information from loyal men, colored and white, embracing all portions of the State, convinces us that loyal men will not be permitted to cast their ballots as their sentiment may dictate, without subjecting them to persecution, violence and murder; therefore, that we earnestly ask General REYNOLDS, commanding this district, to station United States troops at every county seat, on the days of election, as far as possible.

That we look with horror upon the reports from many portions of the State of the murder of colored men by rebels upon the plea that they are caught in the act of cattle skinning or horse stealing, and that these terrible outrages call loudly upon the authorities to whom we look for protection for summary and speedy redress.

That we urge the President to submit the suffrage clause contained in the proposed Constitution separately from the other portions of the same instrument.

The Pardoning Power of the President.

From the Indianapolis Sentinel, May 19.

A very important decision was rendered by the Judge of the United States District Court yesterday in the case of CHARLES G. BERRY vs. JOHN D. THOMASON. Some years ago a judgment was rendered against THOMASON for $15,000 in an action brought by the United States to recover penalties for selling tobacco with false brands. In that action CHARLES G. BERRY was the informer, and he was declared by the Court to be entitled to a moiety of the judgment. As the finding of the Court, however, showed that THOMASON was only technically guilty, the offence having been committed by his partner, without his knowledge, the President of the United States, when made acquainted with the facts in the case, granted to THOMASON a full pardon.

The informer, BERRY, now insists that this pardon cannot release THOMASON from the part of the judgment to which he is entitled, and seeks to collect the same by execution. THOMASON filed his petition, asking the Court to grant a perpetual injunction to stay BERRY from enforcing the judgment. The case was ably and elaborately argued by Messrs. HENDRICKS and McDONALD for THOMASON, and Messrs. PORTER and HANNA for BERRY. Much stress was laid upon an able opinion delivered some time ago by Judge BALLARD, of the United States District Court of Kentucky, in which he decided that the President had no right by the exercise of the pardoning power to deprive an informer of an interest that had been decided by judgment.

Judge McDONALD, though at first strongly inclined to concur in this view, decided finally in favor of THOMASON, on the ground that the power to grant reprieves and pardon for offences committed against the United States, is conferred by Congress upon the President, and cannot be limited by an act of the National Legislature. As the amount involved is very large, and the question entirely new and important, the case will probably be taken by appeal to the United States Circuit Court.

THE TWENTY-SECOND REGIMENT.

Excursion to Sing Sing—Reception by the Village Authorities—The Target Firing and Prizes.

The Twenty-second Regiment, according to announcement, took their departure for Sing Sing yesterday morning. At 7 o'clock the regiment formed in line, and at 7:30 proceeded from the headquarters to the foot of Twentieth-street, North River, where the steamboat Stamford was in waiting to convey it to its destination. It arrived at Sing Sing at 11:30. On arriving there, the village authorities received the corps in the handsomest manner. From the wharf the procession proceeded to the grove, about a mile and a half distant.

The prizes to be contended for by the members of the regiment were as follows:

A gold-mounted breech-loading Winchester rifle, presented by Colonel W. W. REMMEY; a gold medal, by Captain VOSE; ditto, by Lieutenant AUSTIN; order for a full-dress fancy uniform, by Lieutenant-Colonel PORTER; ditto, or its equivalent, by Quartermaster RODGERS; two gold medals, by the Board of Officers. The best shot to have the first selection of these prizes; second best, the second, and so on. Lieutenant-Colonel PORTER, Major CAMP and Captain WINGATE were appointed judges in the prize firing.

The following-named persons in the several companies made the largest number of points: Company A—Messrs. Anderson, Adubon, Walker, E. M. Cunningham, H. J. Schwartz, J. H. Turner, Lowerre, Broadwell, Duff; Company B—J. H. Clark, Roux, Kemp; Company C—M. M. Taylor, Dobbs, Johnson, Budenback, James Crowell, Phillips, M. Q. Crowell; Company D—Graham and Chapin; Company E—Bird and Abbott; Company F—Thompson, Gock, Power, G. W. Bussell; Company H—Alexander Smith and Martin; Company I—Pyatt, Lowerre, Harris, Van Antwerp and Sergeant Lewis.

The above-named persons were then allowed to fire three shots more, and the following result was obtained:

No. 1.—John H. Turner, of Company A; John F. Gock, of Company F; Joseph Crowell, of Company C; Lorenzo Power, of Company F; M. Q. Crowell, of Company C; H. B. Thompson, of Company F, and Wm. M. Kemp, of Company B.

Mr. TURNER, being the first, selected the rifle as his choice.

At 5:30 the entire company took up the line of march from the grove to the village square, and were there presented with a beautiful American flag of silk. It is six and a half feet long by six wide, with rosewood staff, bearing the following inscription: "Presented to the Twenty-second Regiment by the ladies of Sing Sing, May 21, 1869."

It was formally presented by Rev. Mr. BUELL, of Trinity Church, Sing Sing, and late the Colonel of the One Hundred and Sixty-ninth New-York Volunteers.

The ladies who were foremost in this movement are Miss ALICE, JULIA and SANCHIE RYDER. After this presentation had taken place, the regiment proceeded to Olive Hall, where a bountiful collation had been prepared. Speeches were made, songs were sung, &c., and the regiment proceeded on their way home, and arrived in this City through the drenching rain last night at 11 o'clock.

The regiment numbered in all about 400 men.

The following are the staff officers: Colonel W. W. REMMEY, Lieutenant-Colonel JOSIAH PORTER, Major JOHN T. CAMP, Surgeon RODENSTEIN and Assistant ROBERTS, Quartermaster RODGERS, Commissary PARDOE, and Captains WINGATE and PALMER.

Lay Representation in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

A meeting in favor of lay representation in the annual and general conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was held in the Fleet-street Church last evening. Addresses were made by O. C. NORTH, Esq., and Rev. O. H. TIFFANY, D. D., of New-Brunswick, N. J. The latter speaker said Methodism was true piety vitalizing itself in taking advantage of providential circumstances. Methodism was successful in that it entered every open door and laid hold of every instrumentality for the work of God. Quarterly conferences were the source of the strength of Methodism, and they enjoyed the aid of lay delegates. He was in favor of lay delegates to the higher councils of the Church. After Dr. TIFFANY's address, the meeting adjourned.

Academy of Eclectic Medicine.

The ninth annual meeting of the Brooklyn Academy of Eclectic Medicine was held last evening in Granada Hall, Myrtle-avenue. An address was delivered by HENRY S. FIRTH, M. D., in which he gave a statement of the triumphs of the Eclectic system in Brooklyn, and the success of the Academy. Professor NEWTON followed him in a speech, showing the audience that Eclecticism meant merely exercising the right on the part of that particular school to accept or reject any of the antidotes or remedies of any school with a view to the benefit of such patients as came under their care. The hall was well filled with an attentive audience.

A FAMILY FEUD.

A Valuable House and Lot at the Bottom of the Affair—Searching the Grave for Evidence of Murder.

Yesterday afternoon the body of ROBERT WILSON, formerly residing at No. 119 West Forty-fifth-street, New-York, and who, it is claimed, died suddenly and mysteriously at the house of one ISAAC WILSON, in Bergen, was exhumed for the purpose of holding an investigation. The body was taken up by order of Coroner WHITE, of Hoboken, on an affidavit made by ROBERT M. WILSON, a son of deceased, who alleges that death was caused by poison or some other unnatural or violent cause.

The remains were removed to the Morgue, connected with St. Mary's Hospital at Hoboken, where a post mortem was made by Dr. CHABERT. The stomach and contents were placed in a jar and sent to Professor DOREMUS for analyzation, upon the result of which will depend the holding of an inquest. The following is the affidavit upon which the Coroner took action:

Robert M. Wilson, of the City of New-York, made an affidavit, of which the following is the substance: That deponent, together with his sister, Kate A. Wilson, have resided at No. 119 West Forty-fifth-street, New-York, since 1855; that one Robert Wilson, his father, now deceased, resided in the same house with them from the year 1850 until the 19th day of October, 1867, when he was enticed and persuaded (while intoxicated with spirituous liquors given him by one Fitzsimmons for the purpose of taking him away) to leave said house and go with Fitzsimmons to his house, No. 107 East Thirteenth-street, and was there kept two days, and then removed by him to the house of Isaac Wilson, a supposed brother, at South Bergen, and there he remained until death; that deponent was prevented from seeing him at any time, and did not see him but once, and that was at Court in the trial of a certain case where said Robert Wilson was interested, which was in November, 1868; that deponent was prevented by threats of violence from going to see Robert Wilson, who was kept in the vicinity of the house all the time, and was prevented from going to see deponent or his sister; that deponent has been informed and believes that said Robert Wilson was in perfect health on the Friday week before he died, and that he died very suddenly on the 2d day of May, 1869, at the house of Isaac Wilson, and was buried on the 4th of May; and further, that deponent nor his sister Kate received any notice of his death, and were not aware of his death until several days thereafter; that he was buried in the Bergen graveyard, kept by one Speer, and deponent has been informed that no certificate of death was given to said Speer, and that he was buried without any certificate whatever; deponent was further informed that he died a horrible death; that said Robert Wilson often informed visitors that he would like to go home and see his children, but was prevented by Isaac Wilson and his family; that said Robert Wilson, his father, was about 65 years of age, and owned said house and lot at No. 119 West Forty-fifth-street, New-York, and that said Isaac Wilson pretended that he was a brother of said Robert Wilson, and took him from New-York for the purpose of influencing him to sign over said property (said to be worth $25,000) to said Isaac Wilson, and that he has succeeded in getting the signature of said Robert Wilson to a paper purporting to be a deed for said house and lot, and that this deponent verily and honestly believes that his father, Robert Wilson, was taken from New-York and forced to sign said deed, and was poisoned, or violence was used by said Isaac Wilson and his wife, to take his life, for the purpose of getting possession of said house and lot, and that said Robert Wilson did die by poison, or by some violence unknown to deponent; that this deponent has just and reasonable cause to suspect, and does suspect, that such is the case from all the circumstances connected with the same, for that said Isaac Wilson did not employ his own family doctor to attend him, said Robert Wilson, when dying, but a strange doctor, named Craven, and that when buried a strange minister officiated at the funeral; that he died a horrible death, and none of his relations were notified or allowed to attend the funeral; that said Isaac Wilson put an end to said Robert Wilson's life for the purpose that said Isaac Wilson might own the house and lot in the City of New-York. Therefore deponent prays that an examination be had into all the circumstances relating to the above case.

The Brilliant Meteor on Thursday Night.

The brilliant meteor, which was seen in this City soon after 11 o'clock on Thursday night, was observed as far east as Boston, and south as Philadelphia. The Boston Journal says that several persons who happened to be out in the streets as late as that hour, had their attention attracted by a flash of scarlet-tinged light, as it passed from east to west over the City. It was in sight several seconds, and its apparent size was about that of a twelve-pound cannon-ball.

The Springfield Republican describes it as expanding rapidly from a starlike point to a wondrous ball of fire, which sped across the heavens from near the southwestern horizon toward the northeast, full half-way to the zenith. Its wide and lambent wake shed a violet light more powerful than the rival rays of the moon, casting shadows in the street, and penetrating even within doors.

The Worcester Spy says its course was across the heavens from east to west, a little south of the zenith, and during its appearance it emitted a brilliant light, sufficient to enable the reading of common print in the street. Its course ended in an explosion, the fragments assuming the color of fire and fading from sight. It appeared to observers to be twice the size of the moon.

The Providence Herald, growing enthusiastic at the unwonted sight, says: The heavens were suddenly illuminated, and for about thirty seconds a person could easily read the finest print; but at the end of that length of time the brilliant shooting star burst with a report similar to that of a pistol, and dissolved in many brilliant stars of varied colors. The meteor made its appearance in the east, and shot toward the western horizon, where it sank into oblivion among the things of the past. The color at first was of a greenish cast, but as it wended its way through the realms of space it assumed a golden tinge, which it retained until, like a rocket, it burst, and its variegated stars seemed for a few seconds to rival those orbs of brightness which are supposed to be fixed in the illuminated heavens.

The Hartford Courant, more matter-of-fact, though rather obscure toward the close, says: The spectator, standing on the corner of Main and Pratt streets, saw almost directly over the State-house what appeared at first to be a small speck of fire, which gradually developed into a huge ball, quite as large as the three-quarter moon seen toward the west, and had a pale, bluish color; then, reaching its fullness, it burst out like a shooting star and passed with rapidity in a northeasterly direction, fading as it went, and leaving behind a trail of fire bright in colors and rivaling the most gorgeous pyrotechnics. As it shot across the heavens it lighted up with more brilliancy than the moon and cast the flash which attracted the attention of many people indoors.

The New-Haven Palladium says it streamed through the sky in a northerly direction; that it shed a pale green light of great splendor, and left a train of fire in its wake. During its passage, which lasted perhaps five seconds, everything was literally as "bright as day."

The Newburg Journal says it was visible for five or six seconds, and then exploded in a blaze of bright light, which rendered objects clearly visible.

The Newark Journal says the whole city seemed lit up with a variety of colored lamps; "it passed on its way with the usual oscillating motion, and disappeared with an explosion."

The Philadelphia Bulletin describes its appearance in terms already familiar to the readers of yesterday's TIMES.

BY TELEGRAPH.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Friday, May 21.

A very brilliant meteor was seen by one of the students at this College last night at 11:05 o'clock. Its course was from the south toward the east, making an angle of about thirty degrees with the horizon. It burst at an altitude of about fifteen degrees above the horizon, giving a light greater than that of the full moon, and of a bluish tint.

Velocipede Matters.

The long-distance race between HARDING and MESSINGER, which was commenced at the Empire City Rink on Wednesday evening, terminated last night in the success of the former. The conditions were three heats of twenty-five miles each, best two in three, for $500. HARDING won the first and last heats, and was declared the winner. Despite the unpropitious weather, there was an excellent attendance, last evening, to witness the finish of this exciting contest.

This evening Steinway Hall will be opened as a velocipede hall, on which occasion all the amateur experts of this City and Brooklyn are expected to be present. The affair is under the management of Messrs. MACMILLAN and COATES, with HARRY TAXTER as master of velocipedes.

Small-pox at Quarantine.

The authorities at Quarantine yesterday discovered several cases of small-pox on board the bark Auton, which arrived from Bremen in the Lower Bay yesterday morning. The vessel has been detained at Quarantine. No particulars or lists of passengers have come to hand.

PRIVATE DETECTIVES.

A Defence of the System by one of the Craft.

Interesting Account of the "Shadows" and "Pipers," their Characters, Requisites, Wages and Works—The Tendency to Dishonesty Explained by an Ex-"Shadow."

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, May 19, 1869.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

While generally signifying approval of the article in the TIMES of this morning, upon the "Private Detective System and its Abuses," we desire to call your attention to one or two errors into which your reporter has perhaps inadvertently fallen. We think, in justice to the few respectable establishments in this City engaged in the detective business, the same publicity to our reply should be given as was to the article alluded to. In the first place, it is a mistake to say that detective agencies—reputable ones, at least—"employ men who make it a business to study the habits of young men occupying responsible positions, for the purpose of reporting them to their employers or partners in business." No agency "fills orders for the moral characters of individuals;" nor do they "keep ledgers and day-books, in which the moral accounts of hundreds and thousands of young men are duly entered and balanced." But that "general gross abuses have been grafted into the system, calculated to destroy the value of the surveillance which, properly conducted, is of real and substantial benefit," we are willing to accept as very true.

Yet these abuses are not discovered in, nor do they necessarily form part or portion of, the reputable detective agencies in New-York City. It is a fact that the greater proportion of the really first-class banking and commercial houses here have adopted the very useful and very proper precaution of having their principal employes duly "tested," at least twice each and every year, as to their moral and pecuniary proceedings after as well as during business hours—as to their companions, habits, haunts, &c., &c. We are happy that we are able to say, however, that comparatively few bankers or tradesmen select their "shadowers" from the unprincipled and unreliable persons to whom your writer makes allusion. On the contrary, as they undoubtedly should be, they are extremely painstaking that they may secure the services of men from reliable, well-established, respectable detective agencies. The maxim, "Set a thief to catch a thief," is, happily, long since exploded and obsolete.

A word as to the matter of salary. Persons who pretend to knowledge of the profession of surveillance can be had for $10 to $12 per week. But a man who could not at some other respectable calling earn at least his $3 per diem, or $25 per week, would make but little progress in attempting to secure a position on our force, even as a "shadow." Secondly, as to character: It is undoubtedly necessary that a good operative should be a temperate and sober man. Hence no drinking persons are employed. It is equally essential that he should be regular in his habits, reliable in his statements, and possessed of courage, perseverance, energy and good judgment, not to speak of good health and a hardy, active physical development. And, as he may be called upon the witness stand, it is absolutely necessary that he should never have been convicted of a felony. It is not saying too much when we venture the assertion that in no other business and profession—that of banker and merchant included—carried on in New-York, is there more time and pains taken in making sure of the antecedents, characters, previous callings, habits, companions of employes, than agents endeavor to exercise when they are called upon to take a new man upon their force of "shadowers" and "pipers." If the reader doubts it, let him try the experiment by applying for such a position.

And again has your writer erred when he says: "It requires but little detective ability to 'shadow' an unsuspecting clerk for a few hours in the evening." The reporter has probably never attempted the service; or, if so, has been "put upon" a very verdant and unsuspecting person, indeed. The addenda that, "when faithfully performed, the duties of the private detective are no sinecure," will be seconded as true by every person who has once essayed the task, even in the capacity of an amateur.

The statement that "some of the employes of the private detective agencies are so deficient in honor that they do not hesitate, when sent to 'test' a clerk, to shirk their duty and then make out reports most outrageously false and injurious to the character of the clerk," may apply to the men employed by some unprincipled outside houses—and was probably intended for this class of persons—mere pretenders in the ranks of private detectives—but is entirely incorrect as regards the parties in the employ of this establishment, or by its Chicago or St. Louis branches, or as its secret agents in the principal cities of the United States and in Europe. In fact, we challenge the closest scrutiny of the characters of those men and women regularly engaged by us in the capacity of "shadows," "ropers," or general detectives, as we also challenge the closest examination of each and every official act of this agency.

But, speaking of abuses, one general recommendation, if acted upon, would probably have the effect of correcting all the errors and abuses of which you complain. This correction concerns the general public. Then, let the public—whether banking public, commercial public, insurance public, express or railroad public—make sure, beyond a doubt, when they need the services of private detectives, in any capacity, that in the selection of such persons, they exercise the same diligence and care in regard to the agency whose employes they use, that they would in looking up the references and antecedents of a man who came to them as a new customer, and who proposed doing an extensive business with them, and of whose associations and finances they were in ignorance. Let this be always done, there will be no more abuses of which the public can complain.

Respectfully,
PRIVATE DETECTIVES.

What Tends to Make Private Detectives Dishonest.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

After reading an account of the "evil" of our "special spies" in the NEW-YORK TIMES of the 19th inst., permit me, through the columns of your paper, to show what tends to make our private detective system an "evil."

You stated that a private detective's wages ranged from $10 to $12 per week. Now allow me, on very good authority, to state that there are very few of them who average $10 per week; and when you come to consider the existing difficulties under which they have to work—inclement weather, late hours, &c.—you will not be surprised at dishonesty for the above remuneration. Not but that the private detective firms could afford to pay their men better, only like a great many other unprincipled men, they seek to have their work done at the lowest rate, without considering the character of the men they employ.

When these firms meet men whom they know to be honest, it would be natural to suppose that they would retain them at a fair remuneration; but, on the contrary, as soon as another man about whose character they may know nothing, proposes to work for less than their honest men are satisfied with, they immediately reduce their honest men's wages, or give the work to the man about whom they know nothing.

Then comes the "evil" of which you so justly complain.

Those men who are satisfied, or pretend to be satisfied, with the paltry remuneration which they propose to work for, are unscrupulous enough to act dishonestly toward their employers, and thereby create the terrible "evil" of which you have spoken.

There is a remedy for such an "evil." Let the members of those private detective firms, who "lord" it all day in easy chairs, be generous enough to let their honest men have enough to live respectably on, and thereby eradicate the present "evil" to a great extent.

"ISE SHARP."

The Case of Max Klinger, the Murderer.

The jury failed to agree at the second trial of the boy MAX KLINGER, in St. Louis, for the murder of his uncle. Commenting upon this result, the St. Louis Democrat says:

"The result of this trial is another sad commentary upon the jury system of the United States. A murder as cold-blooded and premeditated as any that ever darkened the annals of crime is committed in the open light of day—an uncle falls by the hand of his nephew—murdered for a small sum of money—the murderer escapes by flight, is arrested, makes a full confession of the crime, is tried, and a jury of American freemen, after hearing the testimony in full, are unable to agree as to his guilt or innocence! And why? Simply because his counsel, having no other earthly defence to make, tells the jury that he is insane! A naked assertion, unsupported by a single fact, save the unsworn testimony of the parents of the murderer, taken in Germany, with no one to cross-examine them, and unsupported by a single corroborating circumstance. The Circuit Attorney committed a grave error in allowing this testimony to go to the jury. It was ruled out by the Court as illegal, but Mr. JOHNSON, conscious, perhaps, of his ability to convince the jury that this ex-parte testimony was worthless, permitted it to be read, and it was fatal to the prosecution. The Circuit Attorney should have known juries better. The philanthropic physician who testified as an expert for the defence, had conceived a strong prejudice in favor of the accused, but according to his own statement it was utterly impossible that KINGLER could have been laboring under an attack of epileptic insanity, or convulsions at the time he committed the murder. Because, according to his own confession, he premeditated the deed—stole the pistol—loaded it the previous day—watched his opportunity—shot his uncle in the head from behind, and then with a hatchet struck his aunt on the head, and thought he had killed her. He then searched under the pillow for a considerable sum of money which had been there a day or two previously, leaving the print of his bloody hand upon the bed-clothes; but fearing to linger too long, he secured a smaller sum from a drawer and fled to the depot, where he arrived just in time to take passage in an out-going train. And all this was, in the minds of five jurymen, an evidence of insanity—of epileptic vertigo!"

CARDOZO AND TOWNSEND.

Renewal of the Conflict—Further Strong Expressions Indulged In.

The Pearsall-O'Connor Case Lost in a Cloud of Quibbles—The Women Again Remanded to Prison—Card from Mr. Townsend.

The hearing of the habeas corpus case of Johanna O'Connor and Anna E. Pearsall, which was adjourned from Friday of last week, came on before Judge Cardozo, in the Special Term of the Supreme Court, at 10 A. M. yesterday. The court-room was crowded with spectators, including a large number of members of the Bar, interested less in the case of the women than the personal differences between Judge Cardozo and Mr. Townsend. District-Attorney Garvin appeared to represent the people, and E. W. Stoughton, Esq., John Graham, Esq., and Geo. Shay, Esq., as "friends of the Court." The two prisoners, Miss O'Connor and Miss Pearsall, were also present.

J. D. Townsend, Esq., counsel for the prisoners, addressing the Court, said that when the case was before his Honor last week, after the Court had overruled his motion to discharge the prisoners upon the return, his Honor had requested him not to say anything further, under the impression, he presumed, that he was about to interfere improperly. He had proposed, at that time, to offer some exceptions to the ruling of the Court, and he desired to do so now, and asked to have those exceptions stand as having been made then.

Judge Cardozo—I think that would not be proper. If you desire to make a motion now, you may do so.

Mr. Townsend having asked to see the return to the writs of habeas corpus and certiorari, said he saw no return except the two commitments by Judge Cardozo. The return to the writ of habeas corpus was a commitment to the City Prison for examination of Mary Pearsall and Johanna O'Connor, charged with "keeping a bawdy house," and with "a criminal contempt of the Supreme Court of the State of New-York," signed by Albert Cardozo, New-York Supreme Court. The return to the writ of certiorari is an affidavit of the County Clerk, to which is attached a warrant signed by Judge Cardozo, setting forth that it appeared to him that these women had been guilty of the offences above stated, and ordering their arrest.

Judge Cardozo—What return you have is there. Deal with them as you see fit.

Mr. Townsend—In order that the record may be made out—at all events before anything further takes place—I desire now to read the traverse to the return. It is as follows:

"The answer of Anna E. Pearsall to the return to the writ of habeas corpus this day made, shows that she denies: First—That the Justice had any authority to issue the warrant for the arrest of this defendant upon the charge of 'criminal contempt of the Supreme Court.' Second—That there was any competent or sufficient evidence before him showing that she had been guilty of any criminal contempt of the Supreme Court, to authorize or justify the issuing of said warrant of commitment. Further answering said return, the defendant says that she is entitled to be discharged from custody under said warrant of commitment: First—Because said warrant of commitment is not in due form of law, and void, in that the particular circumstances of the offence are not therein set forth as required by statute. Second—Because she has never been notified of the accusation, as required by statute. Third—Because it appears by the return that the warrant of commitment is simply a commitment for examination, and that she has now been detained eight days without examination, which is contrary to the spirit and meaning of our laws. Fourth—Because it appears by the said return that she is detained in the City Prison, whereas, by law, if imprisoned at all upon such a charge, she should have been imprisoned in the County Jail."

As further answer to the said return to the writ of habeas corpus, the defendant says in regard to the warrant of commitment charging her with "keeping a bawdy house," that she denies: First—That the Justice had any authority to issue a warrant for her arrest upon the charge of keeping a bawdy house. Second—That there was any competent or sufficient evidence before him showing that she had been guilty of such criminal offence to authorize or justify the issuing of the warrant for her arrest on such a charge. Third—That there was any competent or sufficient evidence before him showing that she had been guilty of the offence of "keeping a bawdy house" to authorize or justify the issuing of a warrant for her commitment for examination on such charge. Further answering said return the defendant says that she is entitled to be discharged from custody under the warrant of commitment charging her with "keeping a bawdy house." First—Because 'said warrant of commitment is not in due form of law, and is therefore void in that the particular place where the offence is charged to have been committed does not appear upon its face. It does not even appear that she kept a bawdy house within the limits of the State of New-York. Second—Because she has never been notified of the accusation, as required by statute. Third—Because the crime of "keeping a bawdy house," if a crime, is at most a misdemeanor, and she is, therefore, entitled to waive an examination, demand a jury trial, and be admitted to bail.

Mr. Townsend—Now, I ask on the commitments that the prisoners be discharged. Under the statute——

Mr. Graham, (interrupting)—Mr. Townsend, do you prove any of the special matters alleged in your petition? As I understand it, your application for a writ of habeas corpus is upon the ground that these two women were denied a statutory hearing. This writ will have to be dismissed if you do not prove that.

Mr. Townsend—I don't understand you.

Mr. Graham—The District-Attorney has requested me to take some little part in this case, and it may be necessary to explain why myself and my two learned brothers (Mr. Stoughton and Mr. Garvin) appear here to-day for the purpose of giving countenance to this proceeding on the part of the prosecution. As I understand from the papers now before your Honor, these two women have been committed to the City Prison for examination upon two criminal complaints. The first consists in the charge that they keep a bawdy house, and the second consists in the allegation that they were guilty of a criminal contempt of the Supreme Court of the State of New-York. These commitments took place on the 7th of May, 1869. On the 13th, the counsel who now represents these women applied to his Honor, Justice Clerke, to issue a writ of habeas corpus in their favor, returnable before your Honor. Now, this writ of habeas corpus is meant to operate in the nature of a writ of removal. These writs are properly before your Honor as the committing Magistrate, under your commitment of May 7, and the intent in obtaining this writ of habeas corpus evidently was to remove these complaints before some other Judge. That object was defeated by making the writ returnable before your Honor. But nevertheless, before counsel can move one step in the investigation under this writ, he has got to establish the jurisdictional allegations in his petition for the writ. Now, your Honor will perceive that the statute is particularly exacting. There must be some cause against the magistrate, or the complaint before it can be removed from his jurisdiction. That cause is alleged in the petition. If counsel do not prove those allegations, the writ of habeas corpus must be discharged, and the matter lapses into the original jurisdiction; that is, the complaint which your Honor originally entertained against these women. Now, the statute of habeas corpus is mandatory. It sets forth that the petition must state in substance that if the confinement or restraint is by virtue of any warrant, order or process, a copy thereof must be annexed, or it must be averred that by reason of such prisoners being removed or concealed before the application, a demand of such copy could not be made, or that it was made and refused. If the imprisonment be alleged to be illegal the petition must also state in what the alleged illegality consists. Now, as I understand the petition for the writ of habeas corpus in this case, it is not so much that these women were in custody under a void commitment. In the first place, the petition and writ alleges that they are denied the hearing which the statute guarantees. Until this matter is established, we cannot proceed with the investigation of these complaints. If the ground upon which the writ was issued is not maintained it must be discharged. Then we revert to the original position of these complaints. The petition states "that they are held by virtue of two commitments, copies of which are hereafter annexed; that they have now been detained seven days without having a hearing accorded to them on either of the charges which are suggested by the said commitments." That is the ground upon which the writ is granted, and no other. Neither Justice Clerke nor any other Judge would have granted the writ, knowing that the two complaints were before your Honor, and that you were proceeding with them in the line of your duty. That is a special matter to which counsel must address himself. The matter comes before you on this writ precisely as it would before any other Judge, and is entirely distinct from your relation to it as a committing Magistrate. You have the right to dismiss this writ of habeas corpus, and then take up the other aspect of the matter.

Judge Cardozo—I will not trouble you further on that point. I have no doubt you are correct. If the counsel on the other side wishes to be heard, I will hear him.

Mr. Townsend—Now, Sir, if you will allow me to go once more over the requirement of the statute, in regard to the petition, I think I can show that it complies with all these requirements.

Mr. Townsend then read over the various provisions of the statute, claiming that each had been strictly complied with, urging also that the statute provided that no petition shall be invalid for defect of form. He claimed that upon the face of the commitments the prisoners should be discharged.

Judge Cardozo—I cannot hear you upon that. If you cannot offer proof as to the allegations in the petition, I will hear you on the questions of law.

Mr. Townsend—I don't get at your Honor's meaning.

Mr. Graham—You must enter on proof that these women were detained seven days without a hearing on either of the charges suggested by the commitment, and must show that it was a wanton denial by the Magistrate who committed them, of their rights in that particular.

Mr. Townsend—I will proceed to call one of the prisoners as a witness. I desire to make one statement further. I will state preliminarily that I am informed by these women that they are not guilty, and this morning I was informed that it would be advisable for them to take an adjournment of this matter for two or three days. If there is any reason for such assertion I certainly would be willing to act under any such suggestion if the Court desires it.

Judge Cardozo—I do not desire anything but a strict performance of my duty, which I shall do unflinchingly. If you desire an adjournment I will hear you upon that and consider it.

Mr. Townsend—In considering this issue it might become necessary for your Honor to be a witness in this case.

Judge Cardozo—It cannot become necessary, Sir.

Mr. Graham—You cannot call his Honor as a witness.

EXAMINATION OF ANNA E. PEARSALL.

Anna E. Pearsall was then called to the stand and sworn:

Mr. Townsend—Are you one of the prisoners confined in the Tombs at present? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—How long have you been there? A.—I have been in the Tombs two weeks; I was in the Sixth Ward Station-house Thursday night.

Q.—Do you know of any public application having been made by yourself or others in the public newspapers?

Mr. Garvin—I object.

Judge Cardozo—The question is overruled.

Mr. Graham—If they sent counsel to the Judge or demanded an examination in person, prove it. You have alleged it in the newspapers; now prove it.

Q. (by Mr. Townsend)—Have you been here before to-day in this Court, within the last week or ten days? A.—I have been here within the last ten days, as I remember.

Q.—Did you hear your counsel make any application, at that time, for an examination for you in this case? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—That was a week ago to-day? A.—Yes, Sir.

Mr. Graham—That I object to as it was subsequent to the issuing of the writ.

Judge Cardozo—It is immaterial. It was after the issuing of the writ.

Q.—Have you made any application to the Court for an examination in the case. A.—I have, through the papers.

Judge Cardozo—Not through the papers; have you made an application personally to me? A.—I have been in prison all the time.

Judge Cardozo—Make answer to the question; have you made application to me. A.—I have had no opportunity. I have been in prison.

Judge Cardozo—Have you made any application to me? A.—No, Sir, I never spoke to you.

Mr. Townsend—I now desire to show that an application has been made over her signature in the public papers.

Judge Cardozo—I refuse to hear your application.

Mr. Garvin—We don't object to your showing that an application was made through counsel, or by themselves or any other party.

Mr. Townsend then proceeded to discuss the questions of law. He asked again for the discharge of the prisoners on the commitment, calling attention to the provisions of the statute in reference to contempt, and arguing that the commitment did not set forth the particular circumstances of the offence, which he cited authorities to show was indispensably necessary. They had received no notice whatever of the ground of their commitment. He was willing to join issue upon that point, and offered to put Mrs. Pearsall again on the stand.

Judge Cardozo—I shall not discharge them on that ground.

Mr. Graham said he thought the precipitation of the counsel on the other side had blinded his perceptions. He said he regretted very much to see a certain publication of which the material must have been furnished by his learned adversary. It seemed to him that his (Mr. Townsend's) zeal had entirely overcome him, and actually prevented his putting a correct construction upon the law. Mr. Graham argued that Mr. Townsend was flagrantly mistaken as to the construction of the statute, and that a commitment for a civil contempt, to which that statute referred, was very different from the commitment in this case, which was for a criminal contempt. This was not a commitment by way of punishment, but a commitment as a basis of a criminal prosecution, simply for the purpose of an examination. It was nothing but a preliminary commitment. Until these woman demanded a hearing his Honor could not even bail them without violating his oath.

Mr. Townsend disclaimed any undue zeal or excitement, and he never felt less personal feeling. He was not blinded as to the law or the facts. The facts of the case were apparent, but the facts as presented by the public newspapers he held himself in no way responsible for, except the statement of the reporter on Saturday last.

Judge Cardozo—It was grossly incorrect, Sir.

Mr. Townsend—I would say—

Judge Cardozo—You will proceed with the argument, Sir.

Mr. Townsend then proceeded to argue that the statute referred alike to commitments for contempt and commitments for examination.

Judge Cardozo overruled all the points made in the traverse.

Mr. Garvin said they were prepared to give these persons an examination before His Honor in regard to both the accusations, if they desired it.

Mr. Townsend—We do.

Judge Cardozo—I shall hear you now simply on the question arising under the writ of habeas corpus as to whether a cause of detention is shown. Having disposed of that, I shall make such further disposition as I think proper. If you have anything further on that point proceed to say it.

Mr. Townsend—I have nothing.

Judge Cardozo—I will take these writs and adjourn the proceeding over until Tuesday next, unless some of you gentlemen desire to make a further suggestion.

Mr. Townsend said he was ready and desired to proceed now in the contempt case, and we waive an examination upon the other charge.

Judge Cardozo—You cannot separate them. If you desire an examination take it now.

Mr. Townsend consulted with his clients, and then said they would be obliged to wait until Tuesday.

The Court then adjourned.

Card from Mr. John D. Townsend.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In your report of the O'Connor and Pearsall case on Saturday last, and also in your editorial upon the same subject on Monday, Judge Cardozo was made to say to me in my interview with him on the Bench that if I took the case I would incur "his personal enmity for life." I stated this morning in Court, in reply to a remark of Mr. John Graham insinuating that the newspaper reports which had appeared must have originated with me, that I had had no connection with any newspaper items further than with the report contained in your paper of Saturday last. Judge Cardozo immediately answered, "It was grossly incorrect." I intended to follow up my remark by saying that the language used was not entirely correct in your report and editorial; but I was directed by the Judge, immediately after his above remark, "to continue with my argument upon the return to the habeas corpus."

After the remark of Judge Cardozo, I think it is but proper for me to give the conversation between the Judge and myself on that occasion. I first sent up to him on the bench the affidavits I had taken of these women, (which appeared in your issue of Saturday.) After casting his eyes over the headings, he motioned for me to come upon the bench. I did so, and the following conversation, in substance, if not in exact words, occurred between us:

He said, "Don't you touch that case; if you do you will displease me." I replied that I had already been retained in the case, and that the women insisted that they were not guilty of the charges preferred against them, and that all they required was a hearing upon the subject. He then said that what they said was untrue. I suggested that that was the issue in the case. Judge Cardozo then said that if I took the case I need never expect any favors from him while on the bench; that I would of course get my legal rights when I appeared before him, but not to expect any favors from him. I replied that I was placed in a most disagreeable situation, and that I would take advice of older members of the bar. Judge Cardozo further remarked during the conversation that the women were entitled to a hearing and should have it so soon as he was able to give it to them.

Let me here add, in reference to your remarks upon Justices Sutherland and Clerke, while I entirely agree with you in regard to the impropriety of Judges refusing applications for habeas corpus unless made returnable before some other Judge, I would wish it understood that in my mention of their names to the reporter on your staff, that I did not impute or suggest the slightest improper motive as operating to cause them to refuse to grant the application of these women for a habeas corpus returnable before themselves—I simply condemned the practice. Their names, however, stand too high to need any further explanation from me. Respectfully,

JOHN D. TOWNSEND.

Alleged Cruelty to Animals and Humans.

At the trials of policemen, yesterday, before Judge BOSWORTH, Mr. JOHN W. HAMERSLEY, residing at No. 255 Fifth-avenue, made complaint of improper conduct against Patrolman THOS. C. CLOUGHER, of the Fifteenth Precinct.

Mr. J. HOOKER HAMERSLEY, quite a young man, appeared as prosecuting attorney, and opened the case with considerable ardor, saying that it was a charge of cruelty to human beings, and proceeded to describe the arrest of a colored coachman in front of Grace Church last Sunday, at the close of the morning service, at the same time drawing a vivid picture of the pelting storm prevailing at the time, and the condition of Broadway in the vicinity—its piles of stone and sand—consequent on tearing up the old pavement and laying the new.

The Policeman, in defence, stated that immediately preceding the occurrence he was at the corner of Broadway and Tenth-street, and a citizen told him it was a shame to allow such cruelty to animals, referring to LOCKWOOD, who was driving back and forth between Broadway and Bowery, in Tenth-street, and whipping the horses. The officer told him to stop it or he would have to arrest him. He continued to whip the horses round the body, shoulders and legs. The officer did not think it was necessary to whip them so; thought this citizen, perhaps, would make a charge against him if he did not interfere. When he arrested the coachman he told him that he (the coachman) could drive the horses to the Station-house or put them in some one's charge. The coachman pointed out a person as his boss, and said he would take charge of them. Parties there said they would not allow him to take the coachman, (this was denied by the other side;) that they were gentlemen, and would be responsible for his appearance in the morning. The officer replied that he could not perform his duty in that way, and took the prisoner to the Station-house, where he was held, and on being brought before a Magistrate the next morning was held for trial at the Court of Special Sessions. LOCKWOOD denied that he had the choice of driving to the Station-house or leaving the horses in the charge of another person. Sergeant FIELDS, who was in charge of the desk at the time, stated that he was particular to ascertain of LOCKWOOD in whose charge the horses were left. The coachman in answer to his inquiries said his boss was there. The case turned altogether on this point. It was referred to the Board for judgment.

INTERESTING TO GAS CONSUMERS.

The Cost of Gas—Can a Gas Company Enforce its Claim by Seizure of the Meter?—Judge John Brady Decides Negatively.

An interesting case to gas consumers, and an important one to gas companies, was decided in the Court of Common Pleas yesterday, before Judges DALY, BRADY and BARRETT. It was in the suit of a gentleman named GOLDSMITH against the Manhattan Gas Light Company. The action was brought to recover $47 35 paid to the defendant under the following circumstances: The Company claimed that GOLDSMITH owed them that sum for gas consumed by him, or used upon his premises, either by burning it or permitting it to escape, the flow of the gas into the pipes of his premises, and the quantity having been indicated and registered by the meter. The plaintiff insisted that he had been compelled by the Board of Health to refrain from using his premises, and that during the period covered by the defendant's bill he had not used the gas, and, on the contrary, had shut it off at the meter. He objected to the bill, and saw the Vice-President of the Company in relation to it, and after calling several times was advised that when it was decided they would let him know. Notwithstanding this management the defendants sent a person for the meter, and the plaintiff's father borrowed the money on plaintiff's behalf, and paid the bill "before he would have the meter taken." The plaintiff knew nothing of this until after the money had been paid. Upon the evidence relating to the consumption of gas or its use in any way, which was conflicting, the jury on the former trial found for the plaintiff, and Judge BRADY decided that verdict could not be interfered with. The defendants, however, moved for a dismissal of the complaint on the ground that the payment of the gas bill was voluntary, and that the plaintiff was, therefore, remediless. The motion was denied. The question which was now to be determined was this: "Was the payment made a voluntary payment?"

Judge BRADY in giving his opinion, after citing numerous authorities to sustain his decision, declared that "the threat to remove the meter or to cut off the gas, which are equivalent, should be regarded precisely as a threat to remove property under color of process or to detain property on some wrongful pretext, and which, as we have seen by the cases supra, would justify a payment without prejudice to the rights of the party aggrieved. He should not be compelled to resort to the Courts for redress, and to remain in the meantime deprived of what has become one of the necessities of life. The occasion for the immediate use of gas must justify a payment, and make it compulsory when made under the circumstances disclosed by this case. The defendants' claim was disputed and under consideration by the defendants when they sent for the meter."

The Coroners' Ring.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

A medical friend desires me to communicate the following case: A few weeks since an aged lady died of pneumonia, at No. 135 West Fifteenth-street. She was the daughter of a distinguished virtuoso of this City, well known to all our citizens of the last and preceding generations. She inherited from her mother a large collection of diamonds, jewelry, pictures, laces and other valuables, which had been carefully preserved in the family for many years. This lady had been attended for some time by a well-known medical gentleman, and he gave a certificate that she died of pneumonia. Dr. SAMUEL T. HUBBARD of Ninth-street, a medical gentleman of high-standing, saw her on the day of her death, and also pronounced her disease to be pneumonia. The former gentleman gave the certificate, as he was the attending physician. All was pronounced regular at the Health Office, and all the preparations for the funeral were made, when a note was received by the Coroner stating that there were suspicions entertained that the deceased lady was poisoned. By whom this note was written does not appear. Such notes have undoubtedly been written before, and they certainly may be written by some member of the Coroners' Ring. Of course they furnish an available pretext for an inquest, and as the $40 is sure to be paid, there is at least a motive other than the possibility of detecting crime. In this instance an inquest was held, and we have heard of no discovery of poison. The Coroner, finding no will, and no occupant of the house but an aged gentleman, who had been for many years the protector of the lady, and who was well known to all the neighbors, turned him out of the house, and told him he would put him in prison if he opened his mouth to make any further objections to these measures. He found a refuge on the opposite side of the street. The property, I am told, is now in the hands of the Public Administrator. Now, my dear Sir, all this may be, and doubtless is, perfectly legal; but permit me to ask whether, in view of the disclosures so recently and abundantly made by myself and others, touching the operations of the "Coroners' Ring," if the public have any reason to be satisfied with such an arrangement? A very small portion of the property is worth considerably more than one, perhaps many Coroners' fees.

EDWARD H. DIXON.

NO. 42 FIFTH-AVENUE, NEW-YORK, }
Tuesday, May 18, 1869. }

Swedenborgian Church—Annual Meeting in Brooklyn.

The fifth annual meeting of the New-York Association of the Swedenborgian Church was held in the church of Rev. J. C. AGER, corner of Clark-street and Monroe-place, yesterday. The Association includes the Church societies of Eastern New-York, Northern New-Jersey and Connecticut. The exercises were opened with a sermon, preached by Rev. S. S. SEWARD, of Poughkeepsie, from the text:

"And Jesus said unto him: If a man love Me, he will keep My words, and My Father will love him, and We will come unto him and make Our abode with him."—John xiv., 23.

He said man was a microcosm or a little world. It was necessary for him to ultimate his spiritual affections and thoughts in the deeds of his daily life, by kind words and acts, before his spiritual nature could be said to have any real existence or life, just as it was necessary for the Divine love and wisdom in the creation to prevail to the natural degree, and to become fixed there before the Divine purpose in the creation of a heaven from the human race could be arrived at. It was not enough for us to love the Lord or know His commands; we must do them. He concluded by urging the congregation to take courage in their great work, and to scatter broadcast the seeds of the heavenly doctrine.

The meeting was then organized for business, Rev. CHAUNCY GILES presiding. From the report of the Executive Committee it appeared that a number of lay teachers had been employed to lead in service and read their own discourses; that during the past Winter one hundred lectures had been delivered, three missionaries had been maintained, and aid had been extended to two societies; that one minister had been ordained and three licensed. From the Treasurer's report it appeared that the expenditures for the year were $3,500.

Mr. CHATTERTON, a missionary, reported that the success of the New Church was assured, all that was needed being work.

Dr. MOFFAT, of the Sunday-School Committee, said it was decided to publish two books for the use of the Sabbath Schools, one of them a history of the life of Christ, and the second a book of correspondences and comparisons for the purpose of avoiding teaching the children irrational doctrines.

After an interesting meeting in the evening, the Association adjourned.

Theodore Allen Again in Court—An Old Case Revamped.

On the 27th of March last there was a difficulty in Mercer-street that soon became a diminutive riot, and finally engendered a bad feeling that appears to have become deep-rooted. On the day named one ROBT. F. TOWNLEY, at the place designated, pounced upon one WILLIAM FORRESTER, in the name of the law, claiming to arrest him for a burglary committed in Cook County, Illinois, by virtue of a warrant issued by Governor FENTON upon the requisition of Governor OGLESBY. When TOWNLEY laid hands on FORRESTER, the latter resisted, a tussle ensued between the two men, a crowd collected, and in the hubbub FORRESTER escaped, and, it is alleged, ran into the St. Bernard Hotel, although he could not be found there. Finding his prisoner gone, TOWNLEY turned upon THEODORE ALLEN, a well-known character of the Eighth Ward, who had in some way participated in the melée, and charged him with forcibly rescuing the prisoner. ALLEN was therefore taken in custody by the Police, who had joined in the sport and was taken before Justice LEDWITH, Jefferson Market Police Court, whither he was attended by a large delegation of the roughs indigenous to the locality of the affray. Before Justice LEDWITH on that occasion, the examination into the facts was protracted, and being characterized by extreme earnestness on both sides, proved sufficiently interesting. Finally the Magistrate found that at the time of his interference, ALLEN was not aware of the official character of TOWNLEY, nor of the purpose of his tussle with FORRESTER, and therefore dismissed the complaint.

This case has singularly enough been revivified by TOWNLEY, who appeared before Justice LEDWITH again on the 19th inst., and made a long affidavit, reciting all the facts as he understands, and upon this complaint a warrant was issued, which had the effect yesterday afternoon of again bringing ALLEN and his numerous retainers before Justice LEDWITH. The prospect of more extreme richness to be developed by the hard swearing of the Mercer-street denizens, was suddenly dashed by an adjournment of the case until Monday next. The lawyers have taken the affair in hand, and as the postponement was upon their agreement, it may be inferred that they intend to get a good ready and exhaust the case when they get at it. Meantime ALLEN was required to give bail in the sum of $500 for his appearance.

Brooklyn Board of Education Investigating Committee.

The Investigating Committee of the Brooklyn Board of Education met again last evening, Mr. THOMAS KINSELLA in the chair.

Mr. KINSELLA remarked at the outset that Dr. THORNE and Mr. SEABURY had been invited to attend that meeting. This had been done as an act of fair play to the Committee as well as to the gentlemen named. The Committee did not like to be suspected of not giving a fair opportunity to all persons concerned in the investigation. He made this statement because certain newspaper allusions had been made to the two gentlemen named in particular.

A publisher in Pearl-street, New-York, was the first witness called, but he did not appear to know anything of any importance, excepting that he had once made application to a certain member of the Board, whose name he declined to give, to see if he could be allowed to supply books for the Board, and that the said certain gentleman told him his price was too high.

Mr. STEWART, Secretary of the Board, testified that Mr. LEONARD was employed by the School House Committee at a salary of $3,000 per annum, subject to a resolution of the Board authorizing them so to do; NATHANIEL CROSSWELL was Messenger and Assistant Clerk; his salary was $1,000 a year; he only performed service as messenger the same as he had done previous to his appointment as assistant clerk; his father, janitor of Primary School No. 8, in Prospect-street, occupied the house next to the school, which was owned by the Board of Education; the Board owns eight lots in Willow-street, which had been used by ROSS & Co. as a lumber yard; he did not think they had paid any rent.

Mr. CARROLL, a member of the Board, had been a member for ten years; he had never seen a publisher's bill presented to the Board; Dr. THORNE had always been Chairman of the Library Committee until his election as President of the Board; he was still a member of the Committee; the Library Committee purchased the books; the Committee on School Books decided as to the books to be used.

The Committee adjourned to meet at the call of the Chair.

Coroners' Cases.

Coroner SCHIRMER held an inquest yesterday at the New-York Hospital over the remains of HENRY KELLY, an employe of the Erie Railroad Company, who was severely injured a few days ago by being run over by a train near Rampo Station. The jury rendered a verdict of accidental death.

An inquest was held yesterday by Coroner SCHIRMER at No. 169 Second-street, over the remains of HENRIETTA SCHNEIDER, aged 18 months, who died from the effects of scalds received by a cup of hot coffee being precipitated over her.

The same Coroner held an inquest yesterday in the case of the infant child of a Mr. FOGELBY, who recently arrived from Germany with his family. The child had been ailing for some days, and suddenly expired while the family were about leaving on a Hudson River train. As neither of the parents could speak English they could make no explanation of the cause of death, so an officer of the Twentieth Precinct took the entire family to the Station-house, in order that an inquest could be held. The father became much excited, and while at the Police Station resisted the officer having the matter in charge, finally assaulting him. While the struggle was in progress the officer's pistol was accidentally exploded, doing no harm, however, to either. FOGELBY was finally locked up and quieted. As death was found to have resulted from marasmus, the parents were allowed to proceed on their journey, the body of the infant being sent to the Emigration Commissioners.

ARTHUR JOHNSON, aged 45, and a native of Scotland, died yesterday, at Bellevue Hospital, from the effects of injuries received a few days ago by being struck by a block on board the steamship Queen, where he had a leg fractured and sustained other injuries. Coroner SCHIRMER will hold an inquest.

A Schemer Again in Trouble.

FRANK KALLMEYER, who, however, has endeavored to hide his identity under the name of Henry Clay, varied occasionally to Henry Clay Kallmeyer, was again before Justice MANSFIELD, at the Essex Market Police Court yesterday. It has not been many days since the TIMES recorded the doings of this industrious schemer as a bogus employment agent, but the complaint of yesterday shows that KALLMEYER was not so partial to any one method of fleecing as to refuse to practice any others. HENRY UNGER made oath that in consequence of seeing an advertisement for a clerk he called upon KALLMEYER and was instantly engaged, and a money deposit being demanded as security for his good behavior he pawned his watch to obtain the $50 which he paid. He never entered upon his duties and never received a penny of the $100 per month of his promised wages, and hence became convinced that he had been swindled. The Magistrate thought it quite likely, and the new complaint was added to the long account already scored up against the accused.

The Java Homicide.

BENJAMIN HARRISON, the youngest of the five men who killed the third mate of the bark Java, turned State's evidence yesterday and related the whole story. The men were ill-treated and had determined to run away. The Captain and second mate having gone ashore while they were anchored in the Straits of Floris, the men thought it a good time to carry out their plan. JONES, the third mate, was sleeping in a hammock near the boat which they wished to take, and as they were afraid he might wake up, they undertook to bind him. He awoke and resisted, and in the struggle some one struck him with a bit of wood on the head. They had no intention to kill him, and if he had not been lying near the boat they would not have touched him. On Wednesday next the defence will introduce some medical testimony relative to the nature of the wound, and the examination will be concluded.

Forthcoming Sunday-School Anniversaries in Brooklyn.

His bail was declared forfeited, and Judge BEDFORD issued a bench warrant for his arrest.

Farewell Banquet to Dr. Frederick Schuetz.

On Wednesday night the members of the German Republican General Committee, and a number of friends of this organization, assembled at the New-York Casino to take leave of Dr. FREDERICK SCHUETZ, appointed United States Consul at Rotterdam. Mr. ALFRED ERBE, on behalf of the General Committee and its friends, read to Dr. F. SCHUETZ a short farewell address, and presented to him a copy of it artistically engrossed. Dr. SCHUETZ replied at length, and in feeling terms, recounting the common labors, reverses and successes. He called upon his friends not to relax their activity, and expressed the hope that at his return after four years he would find the same friends firmly united in the common cause.

LAW REPORTS.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

THE BENCH AND THE BAR—THE AUTHORITY OF THE FORMER OVER THE LATTER—JUDICIAL DISCRETION AND PROFESSIONAL HONOR—MANDAMUS TO RESTORE A DISBARRED ATTORNEY—WHEN IT WILL ISSUE—SUMMARY PROCEEDINGS.

Ex Parte Joseph H. Bradley—Petition for Mandamus.—Mr. Justice NELSON delivered the opinion of the Court in substance as follows: This case arises out of a petition by Mr. Bradley to this Court for the writ of mandamus, directed to the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, to restore him to the office of Attorney and Counselor in said Court, from which he alleges he was wrongfully removed on the 9th of November, 1867. The first ground set up in the return to the rule to short cause is that the order of the Court removing the relator was within its own exclusive jurisdiction, and not subject to review in this Court, and especially not in this form of proceeding. We shall hereafter examine this question. The second ground is that on the 10th of August, 1867, while Judge Fisher, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court, was holding a criminal court in this district the relator had been guilty of contemptuous language toward the said Judge, in the progress of a trial therein, and for which the said Justice disbarred him from the privileges of attorney and counsellor of the Supreme Court; that, at the time of committing the contempt, Judge Fisher was holding, not a criminal, but a supreme court, and exercising its criminal jurisdiction as such; that there is no criminal court in this District, and, therefore, no judge of a criminal, and that the contempt committed before the Judge was a contempt of the Supreme Court. That the act of March 3, 1863, abolished both the Circuit and Criminal Courts of the district, and conferred all their powers and jurisdiction upon the Supreme Court created by the act. We think a reference to this act of March 3, 1863, reorganizing the Courts of this district, will show that this is an erroneous construction. [The Court here examined the act in question in detail, and came to the following conclusion in reference to it:] It is plain, therefore, that, according to a true construction of the act of 1863, reorganizing the Courts of this district, the Supreme Court not only possesses no jurisdiction in criminal cases, except in an appellate form, but that there is established a separate and independent Court, invested with all criminal jurisdiction, to hear and punish crimes and offences within the District. And hence one of the grounds, if not the principal one, upon which the return places the right and power to disbar the relator fails, for we do not understand the Judges of the Court below as contending that if Judge Fisher, at the time of the conduct and words spoken by the relator before him, or in his presence, was not holding the Supreme Court of the district, but was holding a Court distinct from the Supreme Court; that they possessed any power or jurisdiction over the subject of this contempt, as complained of, otherwise the case would present the anomalous proceeding of one Court taking cognizance of an alleged contempt committed before and against another Court, which possessed ample powers itself to take care of its own dignity and punish the offender. Under such circumstances, and in this posture of the case, it is plain that no authority or power existed in the Supreme Court to punish for the contempt thus committed, even without reference to the act of Congress of 1831, which, in express terms, restricts the power, except for misbehavior in the presence of said Courts, or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice." (1 Lee.) The third ground relied on in the return, for disbarring the relator is that his conduct was not merely a contempt of the authority of the Supreme Court, but was also gross misbehavior in his office as an attorney generally, and that, for this reason also, his offence was cognizable by the Court in General Term, and punishable irrespective of the doctrine of contempt. The Judges admit that the rule to show cause ordered against him at the General Term, ignored the order made by Judge Fisher, disbarring the relator, and called upon him to answer simply for the act and conduct specified as for a contempt. Yet they insist that after the return of the relator to the rule in answering the contempt, in considering the answer if any other offence appeared therein cognizable by the Court, it was competent to take notice of it and might inflict punishment accordingly. We cannot assent to this view. It assumes the broad proposition that the attorney may be called upon to answer an offence specified, and, when the answer comes in, without any further notice or opportunity of defence or explanation, punish him for any other and distinct offence. Certainly no argument can be necessary to refute such a proposition. It violates the commonest and most familiar principles of criminal jurisprudence. It is true, where a contempt is committed in the presence of the Court, no other notice is usually necessary; but a proceeding to punish an attorney generally for misbehavior in his office, stands on very different grounds. The rule to show cause is in the record. After reciting the offensive language and conduct complained of, (all of which occurred before Judge Fisher,) it concludes in these words: "And said conduct and language requiring, in our opinion, investigation by this Court, it is therefore ordered that said Joseph H. Bradley show cause, on or before the 4th day of November next, why he should not be punished for contempt of this Court, by reason of said offensive conduct and language toward one of its members, and relating to the official acts of said Justice." It will be seen that the offence charged against the relator, and for which he was called upon to answer, was direct and specific, one well known to the law, and the proceedings of the courts—a contempt of the Supreme Court. And the offence being thus specified, he was fully advised of the matters against which he was called upon to defend, and enabled him to prepare his defence accordingly. That the relator so understood the charge is apparent from his answer, in which he expresses his satisfaction at the opportunity afforded him to present to the Court his account of the facts involved in the case and "to purge himself from any intentional disrespect, contumely or contempt toward the Court, or any member thereof, in the transactions referred to." The order entered on the minutes of the Court, after the answer to the rule to show cause, inflicting the punishment, confirms this view. It is found in the record and is headed as follows: "In the matter of Joseph H. Bradley, Sr., Contempt of Court, Mr. Bradley having filed his answer to the rule of Court served on him, and having been heard at the bar in support of his answer, it is by the Court ordered, that for the causes set forth in said rule, the name of Mr. Bradley be stricken from the roll of attorneys, solicitors, &c., authorized to practice in this Court." The order, or judgment, seems to be in strict conformity to the offence charged in the rule to show cause, namely, for contempt of Court. We do not doubt the power of the Court to punish attorneys as officers of the same, for misbehavior in the practice of the profession. This power has been recognized and enforced ever since the organization of courts, and the admission of attorneys to practice therein. If guilty of fraud against their clients, or of stirring up litigation by corrupt devices, or using the forms of law to further the ends of injustice; in fine, for the commission of any other act of official or personal dishonesty and oppression, they become subject to the summary jurisdiction of the Court. Indeed, in every instance where an attorney is charged by affidavit with fraud or malpractice in his profession, contrary to the principles of justice and common honesty, the Court, on motion, will order him to appear and answer, and deal with him according as the facts may appear in the case. But this is a distinct head of proceeding from that of contempt of Court, or of the members thereof, committed in open court, or in immediate view and presence, tending to interrupt its proceedings, or to impair the respect due to its authority. This distinction is recognized in the act of 1831, already referred to, which, after providing for personal contempt in presence of the Court, authorizes attachments to issue and summary punishment to be inflicted for "the misbehavior of the officers of said Courts in their official transactions."

Without pursuing this branch of the case further, our conclusion is—First, that the Judges of the Court below exceeded their authority in punishing the relator for a contempt of that Court on account of contemptuous conduct and language before the Criminal Court of the District, or in the presence of the same; second, that they possessed no power to punish him upon an ex parte proceeding, without notice or opportunity of defence or explanation for misbehavior, or for any particular instance of the same generally in his office of attorney of the court, as claimed in the words of the return, "irrespective of the doctrine of contempts." The only remaining question is whether or not a writ of mandamus from this Court is the appropriate remedy for the wrong complained of. This question has already been answered by Chief Justice Marshall, who delivered the opinion of the Court in ex parte Crane and another, (5 Peters, 190.) That was an application for a mandamus to the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New-York, commanding the Court to review the settlement of several bills of exceptions. The learned Chief Justice observes that a doubt has been suggested respecting the power of the Court to issue the writ. The question was not discussed at the Bar, but has been considered by the Judges. It is proper, he observes, it should be settled and the opinion of the Court announced. We have determined that the power exists. He then refers to the definition and office of the writ as known to the common law in England, and to the language of Blackstone in speaking of it, as follows: "That it issues to the Judges of any inferior Court, commanding them to do justice according to the powers of their office, whenever the same is delayed. For it is the peculiar business of the Court of King's Bench to superintend all other inferior tribunals, and therein to enforce the due exercise of those judicial or ministerial powers with which the Crown or the Legislature have invested them. And this not only by restraining their excesses, but also by quickening their negligence and obviating the denial of justice." The Chief Justice then refers to the thirteenth section of the judicial act, which enacts that the Supreme Court shall have power to issue writs of prohibition to the District Courts when proceeding as Courts of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; and writs of mandamus, in cases warranted by the principles and usages of law, to any Courts appointed or persons holding offices under the authority of the United States. A mandamus to an officer, he observes, is held to be the exercise of original jurisdiction, but a mandamus to an inferior Court of the United States is in the nature of appellate jurisdiction. Two of the Judges dissented, and one of them, Mr. Justice Baldwin, delivered an elaborate opinion adverse to the decision, in which every objection to the jurisdiction is very forcibly stated. Since this decision the question has been regarded at rest, as will be seen from many cases in our reports, to some of which we have referred, (7 Pet., 634; 8 Ib., 291; 17 How., 275; 3 Wallace, 753.) This writ is applicable only in the supervision of the proceedings of inferior Courts, in cases where there is a legal right, without any existing legal remedy. It is upon this ground that the remedy has been applied from an early day, indeed since the organization of Courts and the admission of attorneys to practice therein down to the present time, to correct the abuses of the inferior Courts in summary proceedings against their officers, and especially against the attorneys and counselors of the Courts. The order disbarring them, or subjecting them to fine or imprisonment, is not reviewable by writ of error, it not being a judgment in the sense of the law for which this writ will lie. Without, therefore, the use of the writ of mandamus, however flagrant the wrong committed against these officers, they would be destitute of any redress. The attorney or counselor, disbarred from caprice, prejudice or passion, and thus suddenly deprived of the only means of an honest support of himself and family, upon the contrary doctrine contended for, would be utterly remediless. It is true that this remedy, even when liberally expounded, affords a far less effectual security to the occupation of attorney than is extended to that of every other class in the community. For we agree that this writ does not lie to control the judicial discretion of the Judge or Court; and hence, where the act complained of vested in the exercise of this discretion, the remedy fails. But this discretion is not unlimited, for if it be exercised with manifest injustice the Court of King's Bench will command its due exercise. (Tapping on Mand., p. 14.) It must be a sound discretion, and according to law. (P. 13.) As said by Chief Justice Taney in ex parte Secombe, (19 How., 13:) "The power, however, is not an arbitrary and despotic one, to be exercised at the pleasure of the Court, or from passion, prejudice or personal hostility." And by Chief Justice Marshall, in ex parte Burr, (9 Wheat, 530:) The Court is not inclined to interpose unless it were in a case where the conduct of the Circuit or District Court was irregular, or was flagrantly improper. We are not concerned, however, to examine in the present case how far this Court would inquire into any irregularities or excesses of the Court below in the exercise of its discretion in making the order against the relator, as our decision is not at all dependent upon that question. Whatever views may be entertained concerning it are wholly immaterial and unimportant here. The ground of our decision upon this branch of the case is, that the Court below had no jurisdiction to disbar the relator for a contempt committed before another Court. The contrary must be maintained before this order can be upheld, and the writ of mandamus denied. No amount of judicial discretion of a Court can supply a defect of want of jurisdiction in the case. The subject matter is not before it; the proceeding is coram non judice and void. Now this want of jurisdiction of the inferior Court in a summary proceeding to remove an officer of the Court, or disbar an attorney or counselor, is one of the specific cases in which this writ is the appropriate remedy. We have already seen from the definition and office of it that it is issued to the inferior Courts "to enforce the due exercise of those judicial or ministerial powers with which the Crown or Legislature have invested them; and this, not only by restraining their excesses, but also by quickening their negligence and obviating their denial of justice." (3 Black. Com. 111.) The same principle is also found stated with more fullness in Bacon's Ob., (tit. Mand., let. D., p. 273,) "to restrain them (inferior Courts) within their bounds, and compel them to execute their jurisdiction, whether such jurisdiction arises by charter, &c., being in subsidium justiciæ." (See also let. E, p. 278; also Topping on Mand., p. 105, and the cases there cited.) The same principle is also stated by Chief Justice Marshall, in ex parte Burr: "There is then," he observes, "no irregularity in the mode of proceeding which would justify the interposition of this Court. It could only interpose on the ground that the Circuit Court had clearly exceeded its powers, or had decided erroneously on the testimony." The case of Burr was malpractice and stirring up litigation to the disturbance and oppression of the community. The jurisdiction was unquestionable. So, in ex parte Secombe, Chief Justice Taney, after showing that the question was one of judicial discretion, observes: "We are not aware of any case where a mandamus was issued to an inferior tribunal, commanding it to reverse or amend its decision, when the decision was in its nature a judicial act, and within the scope of its jurisdiction and discretion." The case of Secombe was for a contempt in open Court, and the jurisdiction undoubted. So was the case of Tillinghast vs. Conkling, referred to by the Chief Justice in his opinion. This writ has been issued in numerous cases by King's Bench in England to inferior Courts to restore attorneys wrongfully removed. The cases are collected by Mr. Topping on mandamus (p. 44.) One of them was the case of an attorney suspended from practicing in the Courts of the county palatine of Chester. The reason given for issuing this writ is, that the office is of public concern and regards the administration of justice; and because there is no other remedy. (6 Mod. 18, per Holt, Leigh's case; 3 Mod. 335, Cant. 169, 170.) Cases are found also in many of the Courts of the States. Among the more recent are three cases in California, (1 Vol. R. pp., 143, 188, 190.) In New-York, John's cases 191. In Pennsylvania, Virginia and Alabama. In several of the cases the remedy failed, as in ex-parte Burr, Secombe and Tillinghast, the Court having held in the cases, that the questions involved were of judicial discretion. But the proceeding is admitted to be the recognized remedy, when the case is outside of the exercise of this discretion, and is one of irregularity, or against law, or of flagrant injustice, or without jurisdiction. It will be seen that this opinion is wholly irrespective of the merits of this unhappy controversy between the relator and Judge Fisher, as the view we have taken of the case does not in any respect involve this question. We can only regret the controversy as between gentlemen of the highest respectability and honor, and express the hope that reflection, forbearance, and the generous impulses that eminently belong to the members of their profession, may lead to their natural fruits—reconciliation and mutual and fraternal regard.

Our conclusion is that a peremptory writ of mandamus must issue.

Mr. Justice MILLER dissents.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

Before Judge Benedict.

THE DAVIS PERJURY CASE.

The United States vs. George B. Davis.—The trial of this case was resumed yesterday morning. Mr. Lapaugh, counsel for the defence, moved to strike out the evidence read from the book of Commissioner Osborn, on the ground that it did not contain all said by Mr. Davis on the examination before the Commissioner; and also, because a pass-book was used on that examination which has not been produced; that all the evidence used on that examination should be produced here. Motion denied.

Counsel for the defence then called for the warrant issued by Commissioner Betts against Davis, and offered it in evidence, calling attention to the following indorsements upon it by the Commissioner: "Defendant committed for examination," "defendant discharged at request of United States District Attorney."

George F. Betts, for the defence, testified: I am the Commissioner who signed that warrant; Davis was brought before me on it; I held him to bail in $1,000; committed him in form, but with the understanding with the Marshal in Davis' presence, that he was not to be placed in actual restraint.

Benjamin K. Phelps, for the defence, testified: In June, 1868, I was connected with the District Attorney's office; I remember that there was a proceeding by Davis against Bailey, for perjury; was present once or twice at the examination; can't state positively whether I was present at the conclusion of the examination or not; don't know who had charge of the prosecution; I was present when Davis was under examination; he seemed to be somewhat excited either during or immediately after his examination.

Counsel for the defence then proposed to swear the defendant as a witness in his own behalf by virtue of the law recently passed by the Legislature allowing such testimony in the State Courts.

Counsel for the Government objected, and the Court excluded the testimony, holding that the Supreme Court of the United States has already decided that the laws of the States do not control the criminal procedure of the Courts of the United States.

After the summing up by District-Attorney Pierrepont for the Government, and Mr. Lapaugh for the defendant, the jury returned a verdict of guilty. Prisoner remanded for sentence.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

IMPORTANT TO BANKERS AND BROKERS.

C. Ashworth vs. John W. French.—This was an action brought to compel the defendant to execute a "special power of attorney," by which the plaintiff could collect from the Treasury Department the interest which fell due on the 1st day of May, 1868, upon five 5-20 registered bonds, of $1,000 each, which stood on the books of the department in the name of the defendant at that time.

On the 2d day of October, 1863, the defendant duly indorsed these bonds in blank, and assigned and delivered them, and they were purchased in open market in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff, a banker and broker in this City, and without notice of any existing equities, on the 23d day of March, 1868, or over four years after they had been assigned and delivered by defendant.

The interest fell due on the said bonds on the 1st May, 1868, and the plaintiff, not having had them transferred to his name on the books of the department, made three several demands upon the defendant by letter, accompanied with blank "powers of attorney," and an offer to pay all the expenses of the execution of the said power, to which demands the defendant paid no attention, and thereupon this action was brought.

The defendant in his answer admitted all the material allegations in the complaint, except as to the allegation of demand, which was denied. Judge INGRAHAM held "that the demand by letter was not sufficient, but should have been made personally upon the defendant, but that the defendant was not justified, under the circumstances, in not replying to the letters, it being proved they were received by him," and, therefore, gave judgment to the plaintiff, but without costs.

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

Arnold & Constable vs. Charles Hillsburgh.—This was an action brought by the well-known dry goods dealers to recover the sum of $112, the same being for a bill of goods sold to the sister-in-law of the defendant in 1862, and for which the defendant became liable. The defence was the Statute of Limitations.

After testimony and argument, the Court directed a verdict for plaintiff.

Pinckney and Spinck, Esq., for plaintiffs; James Richards and Colonel A. B. Sage for defendant.

The other items objected to are sustained.

POLICE COURTS.

Jefferson Market—Ledwith, Justice.

AN IMPOSSIBLE CRIME.

James Linden, one of the keepers of the Second District Prison, was arraigned upon the heinous charge of having stolen his own horse. He alleges that he left his horse to be sold at auction, with instructions that he was not to go for less than $300, but that contrary to his orders the auctioneer knocked him down to Wm. Lyons, of Newark, N. J., for $141 50. Linden refused to recognize the sale and took possession of the horse, whereupon Lyon caused him to be arrested for grand larceny. The case coming before the magistrate, it was set down for examination to-day, Linden being meantime permitted to go upon his parole.

EMBEZZLEMENT.

William C. Colt, No. 344 Canal-street, made a complaint, stating that during March and April, 1868, his clerk, John W. Russell, collected from four customers the sum of $84 for goods delivered, which he converted to his own use. Russell claimed to be innocent, but was committed, in default of $500 bail, for examination.

A FALSE FRIEND.

Christopher Seng, of No. 310 West Thirtieth-street, narrated in the necessary legal forms that in 1868 he worked and roomed with Adam Sauer, at Fort Jones, Ulster County, and that during the night of the 13th of March Sauer disappeared, together with some clothing and a watch belonging to Seng, and all valued at $141. The accused pleaded not guilty, but was held in $1,000 bail for examination.

FRIDAY, May 21—P. M.

Pursuant to the official intimation in the morning papers, the Secretary of the Treasury has increased his sales of Gold from one million to two million of dollars per week, and Mr. VAN DYCK, the Assistant Treasurer at New-York, advertises this afternoon that he will award $1,000,000 at noon on Monday next, May 24, to the highest bidders. The other $1,000,000 for next week will no doubt be awarded, as heretofore, on Thursday. The further purchase of $1,000,000 of U. S. 5-20s for the Sinking Fund of 1862 will be made, as heretofore, on Wednesday, the offers to be for the principal of the Bonds, without reference to Accumulated interest, which will be paid in Gold, to the seller of the Bonds, as a separate transaction. The amount of the weekly sales of Gold has been increased in consequence of the present exceptional high price, of which the Secretary is right in taking advantage, and of the continued accumulation of surplus Gold in the Treasury from the large current Customs. The May Interest payments are now below these receipts, and as there will be no further payments on this account until July, the Secretary can well spare two, if not three millions per week in the way of sales without making any impression upon his large surplus. The enlarged sales will give the New-York Office about $1,600,000 in Currency, in excess of the sum required to pay for $1,000,000 United States 5-20s, which difference will scarcely be felt on the Bank movement at this season of the year.

The sales of Gold in the open market today fell about 3 ₱ cent. from the latest sales of Thursday, and 4½ ₱ cent. from the extreme advance of that day. The market opened 143¼ and ran down to 142¾@142½@142@142⅜@141¾@140½ ₱ cent. The Cash Gold is easy, and full rates of Interest are paid to carry over balances. The foreign Exchanges were not much moved by the fall in Gold. The rates on London are 109¼@109½ for 60 days, and 110@110¼ for short sight; a moderate business done for Saturday's steamers.

Various absurd rumors were circulated in the Afternoon by way of accounting for the sudden heavy drop in Gold, but the real explanation is, that the recent advance was not only too rapid to last, but it broke down two of the heaviest operators in the market on the Bear side, and fairly knocked the courage out of nearly all of the parties hitherto operating in the same direction. The settlements growing out of the failure of Messrs. SCHEPELER & Co. on Monday, and Messrs. JAMES PATRICK & Co. (the house alluded to in our last report) yesterday, are believed to have been nearly or quite completed, which leaves the unclosed Bearish interest in the market comparatively light. The absence of this short element to stimulate transactions in the Room to-day was very sensibly felt, and coupled with the prospect of a double supply of Cash Gold from the Treasury next week, had a depressing effect. An export demand for American Gold Coin, under these circumstances, might, possibly, stay the decline below 140 ₱ cent.; but as no such demand appears, the pressure of Cash Gold already held by the Bull interest in the Room is against the market.

The market for money was at the steady rate of 7 ₱ cent. to the brokers to-day, and owing to the active movement in Gold and the Railways, there was good employment through most part of the day, but with considerable balances reported over at the close of Bank hours.

The Public Funds were again very strong, and notwithstanding the heavy decline in Gold, the May and November 5-20s of 1862 and 1865, for transmission to Europe, kept up to 123@119½ respectively, and the January and July 1867s were steady at 120@120½ ₱ cent. In State Bonds the changes from Thursday were not important.

In the Railway market the Vanderbilt Stocks made a fuller advance on New-York Central to 192½, Hudson to 164½ and Harlem to 152½ ₱ cent. There was much excitement in Central, and unusual sensitiveness shown by the Stock to the demand which appeared in the Long Room up to 12 o'clock noon. After this hour the rise appeared to pause, and 190¼ ₱ cent. was at one time made, but followed by a reaction to 192 ₱ cent. again. The legislation in regard to the Scrip Dividend of last Winter on the Central, and in favor of the consolidation of the Central and Hudson, and also the Harlem Depot bill, is deemed all that Mr. VANDERBILT and his friends could desire to carry out the ultimate plans of that gentleman, which are understood to point to a consolidated capital of one hundred million of dollars for the Central and Hudson, to pay at least 8 ₱ cent. per annum net to the stockholders. The Harlem will be maintained as an independent property, of immense prospective value, proportioned to its present small capital, including City Real Estate worth far more than all the mortgages upon the Road. The market sales of New-York Central at present include the 80 ₱ cent. scrip and the 4 ₱ cent. ($3 20 ₱ share) declared thereon last Winter. After a brief necessary delay in preparing the books of transfer and for dividends at the Union Trust Company, the $3 20 ₱ share overdue Dividend will be paid in Cash, the Scrip itself capitalized, and 180 shares substituted for each 100 shares of the old stock.

The Western Roads were fairly active, and some of them participated in the buoyancy of prices displayed by the New-York Roads. A large business was done in nearly all of them. The St. Pauls and Ohio and Mississippi were rather weaker than on Thursday.

On the Miscellaneous list there was a sudden and serious break in Pacific Mail, said to be the result of a fresh Bearish move against the stock, on account of the successful opening of the Union and Central Pacific Roads, which it is supposed must soon deprive the Steamship Company of most of their first and second-class passengers; but against this calculation is said to be a most profitable freight and other business through the quarter ending May 1, upon which 3 ₱ cent. has been declared payable June 1.

After the late Boards the following quotations were made as compared with Thursday night. Gold, after selling down to 140½, recovered to 141⅜ ₱ cent. The Funds were a fraction less firm. The Railways were partially weak:

The day's business at the office of the United States Assistant Treasurer was as follows: Total receipts, $2,225,442; total payments, $2,198,753; balance, $85,275,226. The receipts include, for Customs, $319,000; for Gold Notes, $78,000.

The Stock Exchange is under no obligation to Governor HOFFMAN for signing the Bill for perpetuating the Gould-Fisk administration of the Erie Road whose Stock is not recognized on the Exchange in consequence of the unauthorized issues of Common Shares last year; the astounding magnitude and limit of which have never been officially acknowledged, and the registration of which, with some responsible Trust Company, has thus far been declined or studiously neglected. While the Brokers of the Exchange are not disposed, from their respect for the Governor, to regard his approval of this Bill as his personal indorsement of all the wrong doings of GOULD and FISK, Jr., through the past year, they feel that he has given an official license to the repetition of these abuses for five years to come, if by any chance these men should find the way of escape from the utter state of discredit to which they have already brought the Road and its Stock, both at home and abroad. Come what may, however, the Stock Exchange Boards, (now consolidated,) have done their duty in warning the public against the security and validity of the Common Stock of the Erie Road. They can do no more than to continue to refuse its recognition on the New-York Exchange, so long as it remains in its present reckless and irresponsible control.

HOPS—Have been quite moderately dealt in to-day at previous figures, including American at 5c.@10c. for New, and 2c.@5c. for Old, ₱ lb. We quote in detail thus: New-York State, 6c.@10c.; Eastern, 5c.@8c.; Wisconsin, 5c.@8c.; Michigan, 5c.@8c.; Yearlings, all grades, 2c.@5c. ₱ lb. The receipts were 369 bales; export clearances, 650 bales. Mr. EMMET WELLS notices the week's business thus: "Referring to our last review of the market, we have no change to report. Desirable shipping grades command full rates, while inferior samples are neglected. There has been quite a shipping demand for yearlings this week, at prices within range of our quotations. For the benefit of Hop growers and speculators, we give the following figures which we believe to be as near correct as it is possible for Hop statistics to be correct. We refer particularly to Hops of growth 1868: Home consumption, from Sept. 1 to date, 65,000 bales; stock held by brewers in the United States, 10,000 bales; exports from the port of New-York, since Sept. 1, 43,000 bales; exports from other ports, including Boston and Portland, 7,000 bales; stock in hands of dealers and commission men New-York City, 11,500 bales; stock in hands of speculators in New-York City, 13,500 bales; stock in hands of growers New-York State, 8,000 bales; stock in hands of growers Wisconsin, 5,000 bales; stock in hands of growers Eastern States, 3,000 bales, stock in hands of growers Michigan, 2,000 bales; stock in hands of growers other States, 2,000 bales; stock on hand in Western cities, including Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Detroit, Cincinnati and Cleveland, 5,000 bales, making a grand total of 175,000 bales. The exports to London since Sept. 1, 1868—38 weeks—average 1,316 bales per week. Should the shipments continue at the same ratio the balance of the season—14 weeks—the total exports will reach 68,500 bales. While many brewers will not be obliged to buy another bale this season, it is safe to say 5,000 bales, with what they now hold, will carry them through. The consumption, therefore, will reach 80,000 bales. To this we will add the probable exports—68,500 bales, making in all consumed and exported, 148,500 bales, which amount, deducted from the actual yield, will leave us with a surplus of 26,500 bales on the 1st of September ensuing. Exports last week, 1,101 bales. Receipts last week, 910 bales. Total exports for the season from the port of New-York, 43,052 bales. Our London correspondent writes as follows, under date May 8: "Our market remains in much the same condition as when we last reported; fine qualities of home growth being very scarce and in fair demand, while inferior grades, of which there is a considerable supply on hand, fail to attract buyers, even when concession in price is made. Americans continue to arrive in large numbers, and far in excess of present requirements, the imports of the past week reaching, per Customs lists, a total of 2,905 bales, which has had the effect of rendering our market hardly so firm, and more especially as a good many lots are being pressed to sale. Quotations, however, except for low grades, remain unaltered. Belgians and Bavarians maintain their prices very fairly for fine samples, which are becoming rather scarce."

HIDES—Have been held above the views of buyers, and have been very quiet.

The Commercial Convention at Memphis was again in session yesterday. The Committee on Direct Trade recommended the establishment of a bureau of mining and manufactures in the Interior Department of the Government. A woman was before a Police Justice in Buffalo on Thursday, charged with malicious mischief, in removing flowers from the grave of her own husband, contrary to the wishes of his relatives. Her arrest was caused by these relatives; and the Judge, after hearing the evidence on both sides, discharged the defendant, and admonished all parties.

The Treasury Department has ordered Inspectors of Customs to desist from accompanying trains over the Great Western Railway from Suspension Bridge along the Canada border to Detroit, for the inspection of hand baggage of passengers; and has requested local Customs officers to attach certain stamps to such baggage prior to the departure of any train from the United States. If at the point of arrival of such train it shall appear that a passenger has traveled continuously through on the designated train, and there is no suspicion of fraud intended, the Customs officer will pass his baggage without further inspection; otherwise it shall undergo the same inspection as if it belonged to a person coming from a foreign territory.

Governor BAKER, of Indiana, has ordered a suit to be instituted against W. H. TALBOT, former President of the sinking fund, on his bond, for money lost through the failure of the firm of H. J. LYONS & Co., of New-York. A portion of the school fund was deposited with this firm, and lost, it is charged, in gold speculation.

In the Criminal Court at Baltimore yesterday, JAMES E. RILEY, on trial for the murder of DANIEL HARRINGTON on the 26th of February last, was adjudged not guilty, and was discharged from custody.

Two young fellows belonging to highly respectable families in the town of Newnan, not far distant from Atlanta, Ga., got into a quarrel on Sunday last, just after leaving the village church, about a decision the one made against the other as umpire in a game of base ball the day before, and it did not end until one had shot and killed the other. The murderer is the son of Hon. W. F. WRIGHT, a gentleman well known in Georgia, having been at one time in the Assembly, and candidate for Congress in opposition to General GARTRELL, before the war.

A dispatch from the general ticket agent of the Central Pacific Railroad, received at St. Louis, states that they will not pro rata with or accept coupons from any other railroad company. Their fare will be ten cents per mile in gold, which makes the passage from St. Louis to Sacramento $220 30.

Chief Justice CHASE arrived at Charleston, S. C., on Thursday night and presided yesterday in the United States Circuit Court. He made a brief speech to the members of the Bar, indicating that he will remain in the city about two weeks.

The Democrats of the Fourth and Sixth Wards, under the management of the notorious BARLEY, alias "Reddy the Blacksmith," appeared in large force at the enrolling office of the Republicans of the Second Assembly District, at No. 475 Pearl-street, on Thursday and Friday evenings. Their object was to prevent the registering of Republican voters in that district, in which they succeeded.

At a special meeting of the members of the Church of the Unity, of Boston, held on Thursday night, the resignation of the pastor, Rev. GEORGE H. HEPWORTH, was accepted. Mr. HEPWORTH has not yet formally accepted the call from Dr. OSGOOD'S Church, in this City.

By the completion of a duplicate telegraph line between London and Valencia, which has just been effected, instantaneous communication between New-York and London is possible, and will probably be the rule henceforth.

About 6 o'clock last evening, when the ferry-boat Jay Gould was about to enter her slip at the foot of Twenty-third-street, North River, she was run into by the steamboat Palisade. The collision carried away a portion of the gentlemen's cabin, but there was fortunately no serious casualty, one boy being slightly injured.

Yesterday afternoon the dead body of a man was discovered floating in the Sound, at Elizabeth, by Mr. ALEX. DIXON. Coroner BRAUM was notified and an inquest was held. Deceased was about 45 years of age, and had "H. Keenan" picked with India ink on his right arm, which is supposed to have been his name. He was identified as a man who was lost overboard from a Philadelphia propeller about ten days ago. The body has been removed by the friends of deceased.

Governor Hoffman and the Erie Ring.

Governor HOFFMAN has approved all the bills relating to the Vanderbilt roads, and also the bill perpetuating the Gould-Fisk rule in the Erie Road for five years. The former, as the Governor very properly explains, were unobjectionable in themselves; they were unopposed in either House of the Legislature, except, perhaps, by GOULD himself, who determined to have his own bill or "smash" the others. Mr. VANDERBILT asked nothing for himself, and his friends asked nothing which they believed would not promote the public interest. He wanted, it is true, more enlarged station accommodations for his Harlem Road in Fourth-avenue, and for these he was ready to pay a liberal remuneration to the City and to the surrounding property-holders. His shareholders in the Central and Hudson desired to have these roads consolidated, and also a closer connection with the Lake Shore Roads to the West. He concurred with them in the opinion that the measure would prove one of economy to the roads, while it would enable his administration to increase the comfort of the traveling public, and to cheapen both the local and through freights to the trading interests of the State and of the Great West.

These reforms have been granted by the Legislature and approved by the Governor. But Mr. VANDERBILT did not ask to have the Hudson and Central included in the bill to perpetuate the Erie and his own Boards of Directors. It was a piece of impertinence on the part of GOULD to insert the names of his great and successful corporations to give the appearance of respectability to this attempt to continue the Erie Road in the hands of its wreckers. He is opposed to all such interference with the right of railway stockholders to control, and if they think it best, to change or transfer such control of their own property every year; and he has no intention to avail of the act so inconsiderately passed and unfortunately approved at the instance of the bad men who have seized upon the property, only to prey upon it, of the Erie stockholders.

But the Governor, shielding his action behind a similar measure recently passed by the Pennsylvania Legislature—it may be to keep GOULD and FISK and LANE from clutching some of the great and prosperous roads of that State by the same means of purchased proxies that two years ago enabled them to get possession and soon after complete control of the Erie—has approved the bill. Perhaps, in a party sense, he could not do otherwise and keep terms with TWEED and SWEENY, who were made ornamental directors of the Erie by GOULD and FISK last Summer. In this we have only to say that he has done more damage to his own reputation than immediate wrong to the Erie bond and stockholders. They are now, as they have been for two years, helpless, so far as the annual meetings of the Company are concerned. In any event, whether the bill is made law or not. They must remain so as long as all redress through the Courts is denied, or when granted, defied by flight to another State, or otherwise. These three men, as the testimony in the Belmont case shows, fabricated a single certificate of two hundred thousand new shares last October to vote upon, if their reelection should be seriously opposed; and they would commit the same outrage next October if necessary. The act now approved by the Governor will save them the trouble, and enable them to postpone the fabrication and utterance of another 200,000 new shares until later in the season, when, as after the last election, they can cut the new stock up into one hundred shares certificates for the New-York and ten shares certificates for the London market, provided either market can again be found, which is doubtful.

The wrong done to his own reputation by the Governor is the more grievous, as we believe he will soon realize, because it can have no corresponding compensation, either immediate or prospective, to his party or to his own political prospects. The Democracy may find this Erie ring an old man of the mountain before they are a twelvemonth older. The rascality that now surrounds the Erie, to the threatened ruin of all the interests directly concerned, and to the utter disgust and scandal of an honest community, will assuredly be crushed out, and possibly at an earlier day than their wicked authors now dream of.

"England Will Never Fight."

It is often said that the contemptuous and boastful tone which every nation adopts towards its neighbors and rivals, means nothing. And it cannot be said too often, that a vast gap lies between such talk and action. Yet after all this, there is no doubt that the popular boasts of a country have a considerable influence on its public measures. When the English sailor of the past century believed that he was quite equal to any two "Johnny Crapauds," or the Frenchman of to-day thinks that no foreigner can possibly stand against the bayonet charge of the Zouaves, or when the Southerner, before the civil war, was thoroughly convinced that one Southerner was about equivalent in fight to three Yankees—all these boasts or delusions did undoubtedly affect public policies. The cry before our civil war, that "the South would never fight," had a profound and most disastrous effect, especially in leaving us unprepared when the struggle came; and a similar cry at the South, that "the North was a people of cowards and traders," without doubt induced the leaders to push matters to the extreme, the conservative classes not believing that real war would come.

Of course it is natural and best that each nation should consider itself invincible and as fully able "to whip the world;" but these boasts over other countries should be sparingly indulged in, and must not be allowed to affect governmental relations. A most mischievous cry, reëchoed in this country among the demagogues for a number of years, and now quite believed by large numbers of persons, is that "England will never fight." Whatever we may do to her, or however abuse her, she is too much absorbed in trading and has too many "dangerous classes" at home, ever to fight. Under the ancient régime here of Southern Democrats, the policy always was to drive England to the wall, and to come as near insult and menace as was possible. Even in the civil war, her abstinence from any offensive movement was attributed more to her greed for gain and a kind of mercantile timidity, than to her sense of justice. Her foreign policy in Europe for some years has been of the most peaceful, not to say timid nature; her people have seemed to many here and on the Continent to have somewhat lost the manly and warlike vigor they once had. A large majority in this country devoutly believe now that nothing could force Great Britain to blows. Look at her commerce, they say—open to privateers on every sea; her manufactures—destroyed through a want of customers by a war; her agriculture—insufficient to feed herself; her dangerous classes boiling with socialistic and revolutionary elements; her Fenians—ready to revolt and separate Ireland from England; and Canada, open to invasion;—all this will always bind her over to keep the peace. "She dares not fight!" Mr. WENDELL PHILLIPS in proposing to the American Government to revolutionize Cuba, says that if England dares to interfere, we "will land an army in Dublin, and cover the sea with Alabamas!" Even Mr. SUMNER must have felt something of this contempt for England, when he ventured to propose that she should make an humble apology for the Declaration of Belligerency, and pay a bill of costs, which may be reckoned anywhere from $500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000.

Now nothing could be a greater mistake than such a sentiment about England. She is indeed the great trading nation of the world, and the one that has most to lose by war. She has the caution of an old veteran who knows what hard blows mean. But pluck is a tradition with every Englishman personally, and a national quality. Much as England loves money and commerce and peace, she would see every trading packet burned, her manufactures swept into the sea, and her rich fields made as Georgia was behind SHERMAN, rather than submit to a national indignity or give up what she considers her just right. There is no doubt of this to any one who knows the English people.

She has the same old fire which has blazed out on so many battle-fields, and which burned so recently in the veins of her offspring—who sacrificed the lives and wealth of a whole generation rather than suffer a wrong to triumph and the nation be overthrown. Not a ghost of a party would be found on the side of peace in Great Britain if the nation once believed itself insulted and about to be forced to bear indignity.

The Liberals and Peace men would then be on the side of war. The "dangerous classes", would vanish, as did our New-York rowdies during our struggle; the Fenians would be of no more account than are our disaffected Indians now; debt and expense would be forgotten, and the stored wealth and capital of centuries would be poured out for the work of destruction. Nor would the old motherland be a contemptible antagonist. Thirty millions of compact people burning for war form an enormous power. The British navy is a tremendous implement; and the experiment of landing troops on the coast of Ireland, with a fleet of a thousand hostile vessels watching the ocean, we can imagine would be somewhat hazardous. Modern warfare is a contest of purses, and in such a struggle the little island would stand equal, at least, with any competitor.

The truth is that England is not essentially different from America in a readiness to take offence, and in sensitiveness to insult, and she will fight quite as readily, and with as much persistence, as her warlike offspring.

Goldwin Smith Again.

The Hartford Post visits Professor GOLDWIN SMITH with vehement censure for venturing to find fault with Senator SUMNER'S speech. It says his speech was "unbecoming a college professor," and was "perhaps a violation of the courtesy extended to him in the invitation to occupy a chair in an American university." We were not aware that Mr. SMITH was invited as a matter of courtesy. We supposed he came because we wanted the benefit of his ability and learning, and that he was invited because we believed him able to instruct our students. It seems that we prize his instructions only when they agree with our prejudices. We asked him to come because we supposed he shared them, and would help confirm us in them. When he tries to correct them, he is guilty of rudeness and discourtesy. But the Post, which we suspect is slightly ironical in its comments, consoles itself by the reflection that so long as we can see England "writhing and struggling under the speech of a single Senator, we can grow fat on our own sense of importance, and leave Mr. SMITH to grow poor on his speeches against war."

Mr. Reverdy Johnson's Return.

When a man enters prominent public life it is with the unpleasant risk of being praised or abused (or both at once) far beyond his deserts. As there is in literature from the sublime to the ridiculous but a single step, so in politics and public life the distance between popular eulogy and popular execration is very short. Mr. REVERDY JOHNSON is fortunate, probably, in having a cheery temperament, sustained, it should seem, in misfortune, by a somewhat curious compound of self-complacency and sober common sense. His equanimity does not appear to have been seriously disturbed at any time by the shower of unmixed vituperation which for several months has descended from his countrymen upon his devoted head. He has let it come rather, as it should seem, like a philosopher, and has taken it as one ought to take the vicissitudes of a political career. He has not lost confidence either in himself or his mission; has not taken back his expressed opinions, or any of them, and he is consequently prepared to enjoy to the utmost that large "package" of good wishes from Englishmen in parting, which Punch so neatly bespoke for him.

The truth is that the Ex-Minister is probably conscious that, while he is not the saint and hero which he has escaped being pronounced, so also he is not the "traitor" and gibbering idiot which some teachers of the public would represent him. Mr. REVERDY JOHNSON has made a great many mistakes—more than ordinarily fall to the lot of an ambassador, during so short a service. His main mistake, however, as we need hardly say, was in not thoroughly representing, in his words and his acts, perhaps in not quite understanding, the sentiments of his own people. In what respects, and how far he made us seem better or wiser than we are, and how far and in what respects he made us seem worse or more foolish than we are, is too old a matter of discussion to require consideration now—and possibly we ourselves are not the most fitting judges of our own national perfections. But a mistake he certainly made, and "we, the people," have not minced words in letting the world as well as him, know it. Nevertheless, Mr. JOHNSON is a mortal, and, being such, it stands to reason that his character and career have not been wholly as disgraceful to him and us as some wise critics pretend.

That he has, for example, created a very wide-spread impression in England of courtesy, candor and urbanity, and of a disposition on the part of the official representative of America at the Court of St. James, to discuss international questions with dignity and fairness, and without the least reserve or trickery, is not to be questioned. That a part of the English people, at least, consider that "with all his courteous speeches, he is as keen a diplomatist as any country could desire," we are told on the authority of the London Times, which adds that

> "The upshot of his courtesy and diplomacy was that the Americans obtained a treaty which a good many English people thought to involve excessive concessions on our part. We consented to refer very important matters to abitration, and the wording of the treaty was such that it was difficult to say how far these matters extended. Indeed, it may have proved that, on a rigid construction of the agreement, we had yielded a good deal more than the negotiators on our part had intended."

But, letting this point go, (for, of course, our people think nothing of the sort,) an incontestable truth remains, namely, that Mr. REVERDY JOHNSON succeeded in doing what no other American has done, and that is, in putting the American view of the Alabama claims before the British people as a whole, in a most adroit, persuasive and effective way.

We may object to his hand-in-glove interviews with LAIRD and ROEBUCK; but we cannot dispute that he succeeded in appealing to large audiences of Englishmen, from one end of England to the other, to pay the Alabama damages. Nor were these audiences few, but very many—literally scores; not confined to one class, but embracing all classes; not in one locality, but in all localities, and from the London club-men to the cutlers, the straw-plaiters, the "workingmen" all over England. We had put the argument already in State papers, but it was crystallized there, and somewhat like a specimen in a cabinet. REVERDY JOHNSON carried it about for inspection and examination from Glasgow to Southampton; and he enforced his argument with a certain power which personal oratory alone can give, especially if hostility has been disarmed by generous praise of national traits and national history.

We do not mean to dispute any of the adverse points of criticism raised against Mr. JOHNSON in his own country—if it were possible, it would be idle to do so. What we mean to say is, that it is true in his case, as in every other statesman's of high personal character,—we do not find uniform fault with no compensating merit. That he aroused a favorable popular sentiment, whatever his failure with the British Government, is evident from many proposed concessions in the British public Press, far outrunning the actual policy of the Government. If this work prove of advantage to us in future, to so much counterbalancing credit the retiring Minister will be entitled. As for the censure yet to be visited on him for shortcomings, we may leave it to be duly poured out, confident that it will not be administered in scant measure—for it is not a national fault with us to "bow to the setting" rather than the "rising sun."

The New Appropriation to Sectarian Schools Again.

We have already commented on the very dangerous encroachment made by the recent Legislature on our public school system by turning away a very large sum of public moneys to the support of sectarian or private schools. It is the first grand effort of the Democratic Party of New-York to weaken the public schools. The American boast has been hitherto that schools in this country were secular and not religious, and that priests of no sect could train their pupils in their own dogmas, at the public expense. To the objections so often made by Englishmen to this system that we excluded the greatest of all subjects, Religion, from our public education, Americans have always replied triumphantly by pointing to the remarkable earnestness and devotion with which this grand theme was pressed and taught by every sect and church for itself, and have urged that a religious faith is best of all supported by leaving it entirely to individual action. We have claimed that the true mode to corrupt a religion was to unite it with the State.

This is the drift of all modern scientific thought—to secularize national education, with the conviction that the faith will be purer which depends entirely on voluntary support.

In no country has so much been sacrificed or is so much habitually given for the maintenance of religion as in this; in no country are religious truths more thoroughly or carefully taught; in none does the Christian Church, in all its forms, stand so securely based, though till now not a penny of public moneys has gone for its support. Education has been secular, but not irreligious, for the mind, opened by mental training and the study of nature, is more receptive of religious truth. The teachers are very frequently men and women of faith; and the ceremonies of the public schools recognize, though in the most simple form, the great foundation truths of religion. Everything under this reasonable system was working very healthfully and soundly. The preachers and religious teachers, the sectarians and bigots, had their own fields in their own bodies and churches. The teachers of the mind and morals had their field in the free schools, and laid the foundation for all our grand superstructure of liberty and order, while never interfering with the proper function of the Church. The free schools did, however—and here was the rub—interfere with priestcraft. They opened the intellect, so that the child when educated was less likely to obey without reflection the behests of the priest, whether he was Romanist or Protestant. The minds of our youth, brought up in our public schools, were accustomed somewhat to independent judgment, or, at all events, they caught unconsciously something of the American spirit, which rebels against priestcraft.

Without doubt, one large body of priesthood in this country has seen this, and have been steadily laboring to remedy what they consider a defect in our system. For many years these men have been hostile to our free schools. But for a long time they had comparatively little political power, and could not seriously affect the question, where legislation was concerned. But lately, especially in our large cities, these priests have been gaining a great political influence. They control large numbers of voters, and all the local politicians find they must court them. The politicians as a class, whether Democratic or Republican, have no interest in one Church more than another. But they must retain their voters, and they can do that often by means of the priests. Accordingly, wherever these latter work vigorously to carry any measure, they soon begin to show their strength on the political field. The Irish Democratic Party—which is mostly under the control of their religious teachers—holds now the balance of power in this City, and in a few years will almost govern the Legislature. This party, against the wishes of nine-tenths of the more intelligent citizens, have at length succeeded in breaking in on the hitherto sacred precincts of the free-school system. The provision of the Tax Levy, passed just at the end of the session of the Legislature, is even worse than we anticipated from the telegraphic report. The moneys to be used for "the private schools" are not even from the Excise Fund, but are to be "from moneys equal to twenty per cent. of the Excise Fund." In other words our ordinary tax-payers are assessed from $220,000 to $800,000 additional taxes for the support of what will be mainly Roman Catholic Church schools. The burden would be equally grievous and unjust were they Presbyterian or Episcopal schools. Moreover, it appears from the first meeting of the new Board of Education, that this large sum is not to be distributed by the Board itself, but in some mysterious way it is already put for distribution in the hands of Mr. JARVIS, a Democratic politician, but a man not widely known in this community, and that the Board merely has a supervisory power, but very little control over it.

Apparently, Mr. JARVIS can give a very handsome sum from the pockets of our citizens to every Roman Church school in the City, and no one can prevent him. If those schools were like those of the Children's Aid Society, for the poorest class of street children, who would otherwise be burdens on the public and unsectarian in character, the innovation might be endurable. But it is well known that the poorest of the poor do not attend these schools, and that they are exclusively ecclesiastical. The whole measure is wrong in inception and in its mode of execution. But it is a law, and the public must submit. We only desire to call public attention thus earnestly to it, that future legislation in this direction may be checked, and that the distributor of these moneys may be held to a strict account at the bar of public opinion.

The new Board of Education ought themselves to exercise a close supervision over this very dubious appropriation. If these schools are not thoroughly taught, or are otherwise imperfect, they should attempt to restrain the distribution. And no school should be aided, except according to its genuine work of education.

The Tax Office.

We learn that Comptroller CONNOLLY has tendered the appointment of Tax Commissioner to Mr. NATHANIEL SANDS, and that it has been accepted. Mr. SANDS is appointed as a Republican. The Republicans in the Legislature who voted for the bill to change the law, so as to give the appointment of members of this Commission to the City Comptroller, excused themselves for doing so by saying that it was understood that it was to be non-partisan, and that Messrs. GEO. H. ANDREWS and C. M. DEPEW were to be the Republican members. Whether Mr. SANDS will be accepted as a satisfactory substitute for Mr. DEPEW remains to be seen. He has been long and favorably known by his energetic and effective service as Secretary of the Citizens' Association, but he has not been equally conspicuous as a Republican, though we believe he has always acted with that party. We presume his appointment will be acceptable to the business community.

MINOR TOPICS.

Senator SUMNER has a remarkable habit—we suppose we must call it a habit—of receiving threatening letters immediately after he delivers "great speeches;" and, of course, he always hands them over promptly to the newspapers for publication. In other days the Southerners used to send him threatening letters; then the rebels used to send them to him; then the Kuklux used to send them to him; then the friends of ANDY JOHNSON (during impeachment times) used to send them to him; and now, it seems, he is receiving them from enraged Englishmen. If he was not a man in whom we could always trust, we might suspect that he himself was the getter-up of these letters. Such letters add greatly to the importance of a "great speech," and then they seem never to be dangerous in the slightest degree.

The newspapers from different parts of the State already contain reports of cases tried in the Courts under the new law of evidence, by which accused persons are permitted to testify in their own cases. The law has worked well in all the cases we have thus far seen reported; and in at least one instance it was the means of securing prompt justice that might not otherwise have been arrived at.

We have not yet heard of the arrival in Cuba of those immense bodies of fighting men which, according to the World of three weeks ago, were then sailing secretly from this port. They carried stupendous quantities of guns and war-material with them, and ought to have conquered the whole island by this time.

We should suppose that the Old School and New School Presbyterian Assemblies would take some notice of the affectionate invitation which the Pope recently addressed to Protestants to recant their errors, and prepare to receive the decrees of the forthcoming Ecumenical Council. We recommended the subject to the Episcopal Convention lately held in this City; but though they took it up and discussed it, they sent no formal reply to His Holiness. Our recent European news showed that the Lutherans of Germany had called a Conference at Worms to frame a reply to the Pope's invitation; and replies have been sent him by the Patriarch of Constantinople and other Church dignitaries outside of the pale of the Roman faith. If the Presbyterians take the question up, they may find some striking hints toward a response in the writings of JOHN KNOX.

The gallery of paintings which Mr. CORCORAN has given to the City of Washington contains many of the finest works of art in this country; and we have no doubt that the contributions to be made from Mr. BELMONT'S collection in this City will be worthy to take their places along with the best of them. Why can we not have a public art gallery in New-York to which such contributions might be made?

Judge BRADY yesterday decided in a case appealed to his Court, that a gas company has no legal right to threaten the removal of a meter or to cut off the gas supply of a house in order to enforce the payment of a claim disputed by the consumer; and that money paid under such a threat could be recovered in the Courts. The decision is an important one. The facts in the case, narrated elsewhere in full, are also interesting as showing a peculiar, and it appears a too general practice on the part of gas companies. The house of the plaintiff in the case had been closed for a time by order of the Board of Health, and during this time the gas was turned off at the meter; but by some mysterious process, known only to gas companies, the monthly bills continued to run up. There is an immense fortune in store for the inventive genius who shall construct a gas meter which will act in the interests of the consumer instead of the company. The gas swindle is one of the most absolute and extensive that housekeepers are compelled to submit to.

If Spain were to derive no other benefit from the debates on the laws of Constitutional Liberalism that have for some time been carried on in the Cortes, the education that the Spanish people have thereby received in the principles of free government would amply justify the highest estimate of their value. The Spanish people have never, in any previous period of their history, enjoyed the benefit of such discussions as their representatives are now carrying on. The debates are perfectly free, and have embraced every variety of topic. Republicanism, in the Cortes, has maintained its ground against monarchy; freedom of religion has boldly stood out against ecclesiastical despotism; Madrid has pitted herself against Rome—CASTELAR against SERRANO—the New Spain of 1869 against the Old Spain of 1569. Thus have the seeds of liberty, constitutionalism and progress been scattered all over the peninsula; and whatever be the immediate result of the Revolution, these seeds are sure to bear fruit, in days to come, that will regenerate Spain.

Quickly after the announcement of the reduction of transatlantic cable messages to the price of one dollar a word, we have news of the completion of the line between London and Valentia, which is to be used exclusively for cable business. Dispatches can now be transmitted instantaneously to London, and the Company will doubtless find its advantages from these new facilities in a largely increased use of the cable by the commercial community, as well as by other correspondents.

Both the Post and the Commercial of yesterday attribute the fall in the gold premium in Wall-street to the report of the resignation of Secretary BOUTWELL. There were doubtless other causes than this; and it was the opponents of the Secretary's policy who were especially active in giving currency to the idea. Mr. BOUTWELL'S measures have few upholders among the financial classes of this City.

It seems that General BUTLER'S plan of preventing outrages upon Union men in the South is "to hold responsible the immediate section of country in which these murders are committed, and if they do not surrender the murderers to let the military lay waste a few miles square where the crime is committed, and when the murderers are caught to try them by Military Commissions, and hang them if convicted." This is according to a Washington dispatch in the Sun, and is quite in keeping with the Butlerian idea of the administration of Government.

The "handles" to the names of the women doctors and preachers are painfully clumsy. Thus we have Mrs. Dr. CHARLOTTE LOZIER and Miss Dr. ANTOINETTE BLACKWELL. We have Miss Rev. OLYMPIA BROWN and Rev. Dr. Mrs. LULU JOHNSON. If "Miss" Rev. BROWN should get married, she would of course become "Mrs. Rev.;" and if some college should make her a Doctor of Divinity, she would become "Miss Rev. Dr." or "Rev. Miss Dr." or "Dr. Miss Rev.;" and if she should then attain to the supreme dignity f LL.D., she would become Rev. Dr. Mrs. OLYMPHIA BROWN, [SMITH?] LL.D. But all of these forms are offensive to taste, as well as to the optic and aural nerves. Some of the female physicians call themselves "Doctress," but that is a vile word. The whole subject is tantalizing to our intellect, and we can only recommend it for discussion at the next meeting of the Woman's Club.

Editorial personalities are now nearly entirely abolished from the leading journals of this City and the other large cities of the country. But many of the Southern and Western papers keep them up the same as ever, and the editors fire away at each other day by day after a fashion that must gratify their readers, we suppose. Looking over our exchanges yesterday, we came to the Raleigh Standard, and we found nearly the whole editorial page of the latest issue at hand occupied with personalities, of which these are specimens:

> "The Newbern Times man thinks we can't afford to keep a dog. He don't know anything about it, as he has never asked us to keep him yet."
>
> "The Goldsboro Messenger has an editorial headed 'Senseless.' It is probably a condensed biography of its editor."
>
> "One of the Charlotte papers had yesterday a quotation about mules. We call upon the Wilmington Star man to rebuke the editor, who thus impeaches Major ENGELHARDT'S war record."
>
> "The Newbern Times man says there is something in the dictionary about us. Anxious to return the compliment, we are now engaged in reading ROGET'S Lives of Fools in expectation of finding something about him."
>
> "The angel caused Balaam's ass to speak. We have acted the part of the angel toward the local of the Newbern Times—and like the other ass, he has spoken."
>
> "The Newbern Times thinks we often get into water too deep for us. Possible, but he will never run the same risk, as he never uses any water—internally or externally. He had better do so while he can, for by and by he will go where there is none."

We cannot quote any more of these Carolina gems. But in other articles, the editor styles another editor a "puke," and another a "nuisance;" he charges several others with drunkenness; he says the editor of the Star "ought to be kicked to death by a jackass, and we hope the editor of the Observer will be the one to do it." There does not seem to be much news afloat in that part of the country, as this is what the newspaper furnishes to its "intelligent readers."

AMUSEMENTS.

Matinees To-Day.

Matinées take place to-day at all the theatres save at the Grand Opera House, which is closed for the final rehearsals of "Patrie." At the Academy of Music "Lurline" will be sung for the last time; at the Fifth-avenue Theatre "Les Dragons de Villars" will be given; at Booth's Theatre "Wild Oats" will be played; at Niblo's the last day representation of "The Forty Thieves" will take place; and at the other houses the regular programme will be interpreted as during the evening entertainments. The first Saturday performance of "Hiccory Diccory Dock" will be had, we believe, at the Olympic. The pantomime has been much improved since it was first produced, and its attractiveness will be increased in a few days by the accession to the company of the Kirafly troupe of dancers, who have just arrived from Europe.

The Importation of American Silver into Canada.

From the Montreal Witness, May 20.

The Customs Department has taken measures to prevent the smuggling of American silver into Canada. Loose change to the amount of five dollars is to be passed free, and duty is to be charged on all sums above that amount. A circular from the Department has been, or is about to be, issued to the Collectors of Customs, and the new order is to be strictly enforced. The persons and baggage of travelers entering Canada are to be searched and all smuggled silver seized. The Customs officers are also enjoined to be careful to discriminate between willful and unintentional violation of the law; in the former case the silver is to be seized, in the latter it will only require to be entered and pay duty. The officers are, likewise, to discharge their unpleasant duty with consider[illegible] and courtesy.

THE TAX COMMISSIONERS.

Appointment of Two Republican Commissioners—The Democratic Members Not Yet Appointed.

Comptroller CONNOLLY on the 19th inst. tendered to Mr. NATHANIEL SANDS a position as one of the Tax Commissioners to be appointed under the new law. Mr. SANDS accepted on yesterday. It is understood that Ex-Senator G. H. ANDREWS has also been nominated, but it is not known that he has accepted. WM. H. KING and GEORGE H. PURSER are believed to stand the best chances of securing the other nominations.

Mr. KING is a brother-in-law of Mr. WM. M. TWEED.

Mr. CREAMER's friends are confident, however, that his chances are still good, and that one of the gentlemen named above will have to give way to him.

The following is the correspondence relative to the appointment of Mr. SANDS:

CITY OF NEW-YORK,
DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE,
COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE, May 19, 1869. }

Nathaniel Sands, Esq.:

DEAR SIR: As you are aware the duty has been devolved upon me of appointing Tax Commissioners for the City and County of New-York. The act imposing this duty was passed by a Republican Legislature, and with the expectation of the leading members of the Republican Party that the Commission should be non-partisan, that is, composed equally of representatives of the political majority and minority of this City.

I consider it my duty to make the appointment recognizing this principle, not alone for the reason I have stated, but because in my judgment the power of regulating taxation in which favoritism would work such great injustice, should not be with either political party. I have so decided to act in making these appointments. In regard to one of the Republican representatives, my mind has been decided for some time in favor of Ex-Senator ANDREWS. For the other there is great strife among the leading members of the Republican Party, and they are unable to agree on an acceptable candidate. While I desire to recognize the political relations I have referred to, I also intend to secure the best ability practicable to attain for the position. In view of all the circumstances, and looking to your large experience in regard to municipal affairs, and your relations to the tax-payers of this City, as well as your identification with the Republican Party, I have decided to, and do hereby, tender you the appointment as one of said Tax Commissioners. Be good enough to reply at your earliest convenience. Yours, very respectfully,

RICHARD B. CONNOLLY, Comptroller.

NEW-YORK, May 20, 1869.

Nathaniel Sands, Esq.:

DEAR SIR: The undersigned feeling deeply interested in the administration of those local offices which control the rate and amount of the yearly taxation of our City, and the valuations of real and personal property upon which those taxes are assessed, and learning with great gratification that the Comptroller of the City of New-York has tendered you the position of Commissioner of Taxes and Assessments under the law recently enacted by the Legislature, and being confident that your long acquaintance with the defects of the old system and its injurious results to the prosperity of our citizens, and your knowledge of the remedy for the evils we have experienced, together with your unswerving determination to reform local abuses and economize the public funds, will be of infinite service to the people of New-York in the position of Commissioner of Taxes so offered you, do heartily approve the selection of the Comptroller, and respectfully urge your acceptance of this truly important trust.

REPLY OF MR. SANDS.

NEW-YORK, May 21, 1869.

Hon. Richard B. Connolly, Comptroller of the City of New-York:

MY DEAR SIR: I beg leave to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 19th inst., requesting my acceptance of the position of Commissioner of Taxes and Assessments of the City and County of New-York, under the act recently passed by the Legislature of this State. My course in respect to this request must be wholly shaped by the responsibilities and duties I have undertaken toward the tax-payers and capital of this City during the last six years; and before replying to your courteous letter I have advised with the representatives of the commercial and business interests generally, and have met with an unanimous request that I should accept the office you have tendered. I feel that to do so is to augment labors the severity of which can only be appreciated by my coworkers in the cause of good government, and to assume still graver responsibilities in the administration of public office. These I am requested to undertake by a voice which has always been potent with me—that of the united industry, enterprise and integrity of our City. I feel that with increased burdens will come increased facilities for benefiting those interests, and, yielding myself to your request and theirs, I beg leave to thank you and them for the confidence reposed in me, and to accept the important trust so tendered.

Very respectfully yours,
NATHANIEL SANDS.

The Tompkins-Square Improvement.

Comparatively few people know the extent of the improvements now being made in the wilderness of Tompkins-square. That extensive plaza, which has heretofore been a sea of mud in wet weather and a species of urban Sahara in seasons of drought, will, in the course of a month or so, be a smooth and level promenade and parade-ground, its whole surface covered with a hard but elastic upper-crust of concrete, similar to the asphalte with which the principal streets of Paris are paved, the only difference in the composition being that instead of asphaltum North Carolina pine tar will be used. The idea of utilizing the Square in this manner originated with Major-General A. SHALER, and was warmly indorsed by other leading members of our National Guard organizations. Their object was to provide a suitably-fitted area wherein military evolutions of the most extensive kind might be conveniently executed. Residents of the neighborhood, who had so many Summers suffered from their vicinity to this fearful reservoir of dust, warmly sustained the project. The first appropriation for the work was made by the Legislature of last year, and amounted to $60,000. The last Legislature voted an additional $40,000, and this will probably be sufficient to bring the work to completion. Operations were begun on the 5th of last April, and they have since been pushed forward with systematic vigor and dispatch. A section of the pavement on the Tenth-street side, one hundred feet in width, is already finished, and as much more is about half done. One hundred men are constantly employed, and the results of their well-directed labors are palpably manifest from day to day. The concrete used is compounded of coarse gravel with coal tar and resin, the "hard finish" being given with a coating of sharp sand mixed with resin and pine tar. For the bed of the pavement about ten per cent. of coal tar is mingled with the gravel in a machine invented for the purpose, and this material, after being laid on a carefully-graded surface, is firmly impacted by the weight of heavy stone rollers. The "finish" is then spread and worked into the underlying stratum, until a perfectly smooth surface is obtained. This pavement costs $6 the square yard, including the expense of grading and material. It is technically described as a "cemented macadamized pavement enameled with concrete of sharp sand." Artillery and cavalry have tested the finished section, and neither wheels nor hoofs leave an indentation on it. It is needless to say that the Square is already thronged with velocipedes.

ROW OF WARD POLITICIANS.

The Troubles in the Second Assembly District—"Reddy the Blacksmith's Gang" of Democrats Registering as Republicans—Republicans Prevented from Enrolling.

The Republicans of the Second Assembly District advertised a meeting to be held at No. 475 Pearl-street on Thursday and Friday evenings, for the purpose of enrolling members and perfecting an organization. A President, two Vice-Presidents, two Secretaries, a Treasurer and three delegates to the General Committee are to be elected under this enrollment, which began at 7 o'clock on Thursday evening. There were 350 persons present, three-quarters of whom were bullies under the leadership of the notorious VARLEY, generally known as "Reddy, the Blacksmith," and other prominent friends of the Tammany Wigwam, and who had come to the spot expressly to prevent the enrollment of Republicans. Claiming the right of enrollment for themselves, they stood so closely in the line to the enrolling desk as to keep back those of the opposite party until the time for closing, 9:30 P. M., had arrived.

A majority of the gang, including those living in the Seventh, Tenth and neighboring Wards, swore that they were Republicans, living in the Second Assembly District, and had their names placed on the rolls. Messrs. HENRY G. LEASK, DENNIS SHEA and MARK LANNIGAN, prominent Republicans of the district, did all in their power to stop this unlawful proceeding, but it was useless.

Yesterday evening was the second and last set apart by order of the Twenty-second-street General Committee for the aforementioned purpose. And in view of the difficulties placed in their way the previous night, the Republicans were on the ground early. On finding this to be the case, the Democrats, under the guidance of "Reddy the Blacksmith" and DENNIS SULLIVAN, blocked up the stairway leading to the desk and opened another passage thereto from the other side of the building, and held it all the evening so successfully, by going through the farce of enrolling themselves as Republicans, just as they did on the first evening, as to exclude over 100 real Republicans from the Registrar's desk. But few, comparatively, succeeded in getting their names taken. Many men, long known to be the most turbulent Democrats in the Fourth and Sixth Wards, swore themselves in as Republicans. Finding it useless to remain any longer, at 8:30 o'clock the challenger withdrew, and the Republicans retired to their own club-room, No. 458 Pearl-street. They resolved to meet again next Monday evening, to reconsider the matter and take measures for the protection of their interests in the district.

One reason of this outrage is that many of the old Association favor the election of Mr. LEASK to the office of President. And it is believed heavy wagers have been made on the results of the election. Moreover, the Republican Inspectors during the last elections refused to obey the behests of Tammany Hall, and strove hard to prevent fraudulent voting by "repeaters." The present object, therefore, is to elect Mr. DENNIS MCLAUGHLIN, who has not voted in the Fourth Ward but once in three years, and through him to transfer the district to the Tammany interests.

OBITUARY.

Rev. Alexander Dyce, B. A.

By Cable telegram we have intelligence of the death, in the 72d year of his age, of Rev. ALEXANDER DYCE, B. A., the well-known commentator on the works of SHAKESPEARE. Mr. DYCE was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, on the 20th June, 1797, being the son of General DYCE, of the Honorable East India Company's service. He was brought up by relations in Aberdeen, and at the usual age was sent to the High-school in Edinburgh. He afterward matriculated in the University of Oxford, where he graduated from Exeter College. In 1821, he took orders in the Established Church, and became curate, successively of Llanteglos, Cornwall and Nayland, Suffolk. He finally settled in London, in 1827, and devoted himself to literary and critical studies. His first work was a translation of the continuation of the Iliad, by QUINTUS SMYRNÆUS. But subsequently turning his attention to the, in that day, undeveloped treasures of early English poetry, he determined to devote himself to a critical review and study of the ancient writers. The results of these studies were given to the world in a succession of volumes, comprising the works of George Peele, Robert Greene, John Webster, Thomas Middleton, Beaumont and Fletcher, (1843–45,) Kit Marlowe, (1849,) John Skelton, Sir Henry Wotton and Michael Drayton. The preparation of an edition of the plays and poems of JAMES SHIRLEY had been undertaken by GIFFORD, but was left incomplete. This work was taken in hand by Mr. DYCE, and published complete in 1850. All these works manifest by their acute criticisms of the texts, and their happy elucidations or emendations of doubtful and obscure passages, a vast amount of study, and the possession by the editor of remarkable literary acumen. The whole series is much esteemed in England, and has formed the basis of all subsequent editions of these authors. These works, also, have had a beneficial tendency, apart from their direct influence in awakening public attention to the brilliant poetic genius of the older writers. Mr. DYCE, however, did not neglect the writers of a more recent period, having prepared an excellent edition, in three volumes, of the works of the great scholar, critic and theologian, Dr. RICHARD BENTLEY. For PICKERING's famous and elegant edition of the Aldine Poets, Mr. DYCE furnished revised texts of POPE, COLLINS, BEATTIE and AKENSIDE, preparing also, in each case, excellent biographical sketches of these writers. Being a member of the Camden Society, he prepared, at their instance, editions of the old tragedies of "Timon" and "Sir Thomas Moore," which had undoubtedly furnished to SHAKESPEARE hints for two of his plays. His zeal in regard to the old poets seemed to acquire fresh impetus from these studies; for, in 1840, he was led, in conjunction with PAYNE, COLLIER, HALLIWELL, WRIGHT and others like himself, zealous Shakespearians and untiring explorers in the mine of old English poetry, to found the Percy Society, the object of which was the publication of the ancient ballads and plays then almost unknown except to antiquaries. To this Society his most remarkable contribution was a monograph of British sonnets, including a large number of exquisite specimens of this peculiar form of poetic art. As a relaxation from other labors he amused himself with a translation of the lyrical fragments of ATHENÆUS, to which he added an elaborate and learned commentary. All these labors, however, were but as the vestibule of his Shakesperian studies and meditations. Of SHAKESPEARE he could say, as SCHLEGEL had said, "he is a poet to the study of whom I have devoted many years of my life. I should never be able to end were I to say all that I have felt and thought on the perusal of his works." Every line—nay, almost every word—in the works of the great bard were to him a treasure of study and reflection. His researches in regard to SHAKESPEARE's life, his minute and careful commentaries on the Shakespearian text, exhibited surprising diligence and acuteness, and placed him in the front rank of critics. As the result of his long and careful examination of the plays and poems, he proposed to issue a revised edition of SHAKESPEARE's works, and in 1857 the publication was begun. For this great work he carefully collated all the earliest editions, made great improvements in the punctuation, and proposed some remarkably ingenious emendations of the text. But Mr. DYCE inclined to conservatism in this matter; although he did much to restore and purify doubtful passages, he was not disposed to tamper unnecessarily with the text of the first editions, preferring rather to elucidate and explain the work as it has come down to us. Mr. DYCE was not without his literary controversies upon these points, as his sharp criticisms of the editions of SHAKESPEARE by PAYNE COLLIER and CHARLES KNIGHT abundantly testify. One of the latest works is a volume of notes upon the emendations adopted by COLLIER from the manuscript corrections discovered by that gentleman in the second folio edition of the immortal Dramatist, in which he proved that many of the emendations were no better than corruptions of the text. Nor, on the other hand, was he without his charming literary friendships, as his record of the "Table-talk of SAMUEL ROGERS," the banker poet, prove likewise. He was a man of genial disposition, a good scholar, an ardent lover of poetry in all its forms, but chiefly as it is found crystallized in the magic pages of SHAKESPEARE. His life was passed in ease, in the peaceful incidents of study, and in the happy environment of friends loving and thinking like himself. His death will awaken sympathy among the studious, the reflective, and above all, among the admirers of the Swan of Avon in both hemispheres.

Jewels and Jewel Buyers.

It is all very well for the ladies of the Revolution to denounce the fair owners of diamonds as guilty of treason to Humanity (with a large H) and to their sex. It is also very well for Mr. ALPHONSE KARR, who owns lovely gardens at Nice, and has organized a capital bouquet service between that picturesque watering-place and Paris, to write clever little books for the purpose of showing how much more beautiful is budding beauty decorated with his violets and his roses than decent dowagerdom glittering with ancestral emeralds and traditional rubies.

Whatever moralists or poets or horticulturists may say or sing, however, it remains still true that there are no colors so vivid and so glorious on earth as the colors of the gems of "purest ray serene," which are to be found not only in "the dark, unfathomed caves of ocean," but in the mines of Transylvania and Brasil, of Golconda and Peru. The diamond, the emerald, the ruby, the sapphire, represent not only the purchasing power of ephemeral man, but the chemical genius of enduring nature. If a pearl or an opal had no market value whatever, (that is to say, if the vast majority of the people had no æsthetic sense,) it would still be true that a pearl is one of the loveliest productions of the ocean, and an opal the very concentration of all that the earth lives by—an incarnate flash and flush of electrical splendor.

It is an evidence, then, not of the permanence of barbarism, but of the progress of civilization among us, that the jewelry business of the United States has increased, during the last twenty years, in a ratio quite disproportionate to its relative importance among the American trades of twenty years ago. Particularly is this true, since the development of the jewelry trade has brought with it not merely an increase of prices for things of great intrinsic and easily appreciable value, but also a greatly increased demand for the higher and more artistic forms of decorative art. Such an establishment, for example, as that of STARR & MARCUS, in John-st., in this City, would have been an impossibility in New-York twenty years ago.

A jewelry shop in New-York in the days of BONFANTI (who remembers BONFANTI?) meant very much what a jewelry shop to-day means in Chicago or in Philadelphia. It meant what some of the best-known shops of this kind in Broadway to-day mean. It meant a front window blazing with monstrous inventions in silver, with gold watches, with diamond parures. It meant obese candlesticks and plethoric teapots and salvers like the shield of a Crusader. It meant bracelets like manacles and brooches like breastplates. It meant, in a word, vulgar expense and insolent extravagance; display, cost, and the divinity of the commonplace. A jewelry shop such as STARR & MARCUS conceive of is a very different thing. Like dear old FOSSIN, Joaillier du Roi in the Paris of 1847, STARR & MARCUS keep their treasure "in earthen vessels." They look up their exquisite cameos, their gracious intaglios, their pearls of price, their diamonds of faultless water, in great quiet cases of black walnut. Bred in the school of Dresden, under the influence of DINGLINGER's miraculous art, and within the charmed circle of the Grune Gerrolbe, these jewelers are not jewelers only, but artists. Their cameos, the latest and purest works of BISSINGER; their gems, selected not for size or brute cost so much as for perfection of form and color and brilliancy; their plate, planned less to startle the pocket-nerve than to enchant the cultivated eye of their customers,—these all bear witness to the faith of STARR & MARCUS in the real progress of American civilization. The Broadway shops belong in a measure to the past; to the facile opulence of petroleum and shoddy and the indiscriminate eagerness of a congregation of lucky gamblers for some shining symbol of their luck. Upon jewels fashioned and bought and worn in the service of such a spirit, let the women's leagues discharge all the thunders of their anathema. The era of nose-rings and bangles deserves all their reprobation. But jewelry, as a branch of the fine arts, is quite another matter. Jewelry—which deals with the tacita regna mineralium as women deal with the realms of Flora, making gold and silver and gems obey, like heliotropes and fuchsias and spiræus, the graceful fancy of men—is no longer a mere varlet of personal vanity. It is a sprite compelling the powers of the earth, like the powers of the air, to save the soul and the imagination. It is in this temper that STARR & MARCUS understand the trade. To quarrel with the existence of such a trade so understood is to find fault with the inextinguishable instinct of the beautiful in the human heart. Far better and wiser is it, in our humble judgment, to submit oneself to the logic of facts, and to endeavor, from a study of these exquisite and attractive results of the love of ornament in men, to get at some philosophic comprehension of the part which the love of ornament must have been originally designed to play in the development of human civilization and human progress.—The World.

"The writer of this volume is a true woman, and her work is characterized by all the tenderness, delicacy and pathos of a woman's heart. She has suffered much, and this suffering has prepared her to feel keenly the woes of others. Hence her book is full of consolation for the sorrowing, and will be eagerly read by all who have loved ones 'Over the River.' Few writers have ever touched more closely on the spirit land. While following her you often feel as if you are 'absent from the body and present with the Lord.'"—Christian Quarterly.

THE REASON WHY.

One of the most mysterious murders in the annals of crime committed in America was that of the "taking off" of young ——— ———, at Fishkill, on the Hudson, in the Fall of 1862. The incidents attendant upon this murder are given at some length in the article "A Strange Story," taken from the columns of the Newburg Daily Journal of April 30. In this indeed strange story, will, perhaps, be discovered the reason why the publication of that remarkable revelation, The Dead Letter, has been enjoined. But this act on the part of over-zealous friends will fail to prevent the reissues proposed; and this is to inform the reading and interested public that the romance, as heretofore advertised, and as originally written, will positively be given in the columns of the ILLUMINATED WESTERN WORLD at an early day. The edition commencing the story of The Dead Letter will be accompanied with a beautiful Cartoon, printed in Oil Colors, of "Opera Bouffe on the Rolling Deep," 10x12 inches in size, in which the artist has introduced several well-known characters.

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY given by the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund of the City of New-York, that pursuant to the provisions of the act entitled "An act to authorize the construction of a Railroad through 23d-st., in the City of New-York," passed May 10, 1869, they will sell at public auction in the "Governor's Room," of the City Hall Park, in said City, on WEDNESDAY, June 2, 1869, at 12 M., to the highest bidder for the same, the right, privilege and franchise to construct, operate, and use a railroad with a double track, and the necessary turnouts and switches for the proper working of the same, through, along, and upon 23d-st., in the City of New-York, from the North River to the East River, on the following terms and conditions:

First—The person or persons or corporation whose bid shall be accepted on such sale shall, within four months from the day of the sale, finish and complete said road and equip the same with the requisite number of cars and horses; but should he or they be restrained or prevented by any legal proceedings which are not collusive from constructing and completing the same, the time during which they are so restrained shall not be deemed or taken to be part of the time within which the same is to be completed. The said party or parties shall execute a bond in the sum of five hundred thousand dollars, in two good and sufficient securities, to be approved by the said Commissioners, conditioned for the completion and equipment of the said railroad as above provided, subject to the conditions, and with the authority as follows.

Second—Said railroad shall be constructed on the most approved plan for the construction of City railroads, and with the rail now used upon the street railroads in Philadelphia, commonly called Philadelphia rail, and shall be run as often as the convenience of passengers may require, and shall be subject to such reasonable rules and regulations in respect thereto as the Common Council of the City of New-York may from time to time by ordinance prescribe; and the said party or corporation will be authorized by law to charge the same rate of fare for the conveyance of passengers on said railroad as is now charged by other City railroads in said City.

Third—In the construction, operation, or use of such railroad upon the route above designated, should such person or corporation deem it necessary or proper to run upon, intersect, or use any portion of other railroad tracks now laid upon said street above named, he or they are authorized by the aforesaid act to run upon, intersect and use the same; and in case they cannot agree with the owner or owners thereof respecting the compensation or payment to be made therefor, then the amount of such compensation or payment shall be ascertained and determined in the manner provided by subdivision six of the twenty-eighth section of the act entitled "An act to authorize the formation of railroad corporations, and to regulate the same," passed April second, eighteen hundred and fifty. And should any real estate or interest therein be required for the purpose of constructing said railroad, as above specified and authorized, for which the said person or corporation shall be unable to agree with the owner or owners for the use or purchase thereof, they may acquire the right to use or title to the same in the manner specified in the fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth, nineteenth, twentieth and twenty-first sections of the said act of April second, eighteen hundred and fifty, except that in any of the proceedings for any of the purposes authorized by said act, it shall not be necessary that the petition to the Supreme Court shall make any allegations of, or reference to any incorporation, capital stock, surveys or maps, or of the filing of any certificate of location. But in all cases the use of said street for the purposes of said railroad, as authorised by said act, shall be considered a public use, consistent with the uses for which the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of said City hold said street. Nothing in the said act contained shall authorize or allow the existence of more than two tracks in any part of said street.

Fourth—The Legislature reserve the right to alter, amend, or repeal the act giving the authority to construct and operate such railroad.

Fifth—On payment into the City Treasury of the amount of the said bid, and on the execution and approval of the said bond, and the execution of an agreement to perform the conditions and stipulations herein expressed, the said Commissioners will deliver to the party or parties entitled to the same, as aforesaid, a certificate that he or they are entitled to such grant.

PROPOSALS.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE

DES MOINES RAPIDS

OF THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned at the United States Engineer's Office, in the City of Keokuk, Iowa, until 12 M., May 31, 1869, for furnishing the stone required in the construction of two Lift Locks and one Guard Lock for the Canal now in process of construction around the Des Moines Rapids.

The proposals in duplicate will specify the rates at which the party proposing will furnish and deliver, as per specification, the following quantities of stone:

9,903 cubic yards Face Stone, as per specification.
17,178 cubic yards Backing Stone, as per specification.
18,230 cubic yards Rubble Stone, for Vertical or Battered Wall, as per specification.
1,870 cubic yards Rubble Stone, for Slope Wall, as per specification.

Proposals in duplicate will be received for furnishing and delivering the stone for one or all the Locks—the Government accepting the most advantageous. Only one proposition, however, from the same party for the same Lock will be received.

Each bid must contain a written or printed guarantee signed by two responsible parties, and certified to by some United States Government officer, or other responsible person, known to this office, that the party or parties bidding will, if awarded the contracts for the amount upon which they bid, enter into contract with the Government, or make good the difference between them and the next highest bidder.

Parties proposing must be prepared to commence work under their contract on or before the 15th day of June, 1869, and finish their contract on or before the 1st of October, 1870. A fair proportion of stone must be delivered in each and every working month of the time specified.

The name or names of the persons proposing must be written out in full, with their place of residence and Post Office address.

Quantities and specifications, and all necessary papers, will be ready for examination at the United States Engineer's Office at Keokuk, for twelve days prior to the date of letting.

Blank forms for proposals will be furnished upon application at this office.

Persons proposing to contract are requested to visit and examine the Quarries and the location for the Locks before sending in their bids.

The officer in charge reserves the right to reject any and all bids, and no award will be made except upon satisfactory evidence that the party proposing is competent, able, and prepared to do the work required and in the time specified.

Printed copy of the notice must be attached to each bid.

Proposals must be addressed to the undersigned, at this office, and should be indorsed, "Proposals for furnishing stone for the Locks for the improvement of the Des Moines Rapids of the Mississippi River."

J. H. WILSON, Lieut.-Col. and Brevet Major-General, U. S. A.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER'S OFFICE, KEOKUK, May 11, 1869.

TO DREDGERS.

In accordance with instructions received from the Supervising Architect, proposals will be received by the undersigned until 12 o'clock on MONDAY, 24th inst., for the removal of the rip-rap work on the outline of the United States property at the Battery, commencing at a point 250 feet westerly from the southwesterly point of the pier on the east side of the Battery; thence easterly on the line as established by the Harbor Commissioners. The materials to be removed to be deposited on said property, or adjacent thereto, so as to be clear of the site of the new granite wall. The top of the rip-rap work is about two feet above water at low tide, and about 80 feet long, and will require to be all removed to the bottom, so as there to have a clear space of twenty feet in width; the work to be completed within four weeks from the date of the acceptance of the bid. Bonds to the amount of five thousand dollars, to be approved by such officers as may be designated by the Treasury Department, will be required for the faithful performance of the contract.

MEDICAL.

NEW-YORK, Oct. 17, 1838.

DR. HUNTER—DEAR SIR: AT THE request of a friend, who has lately been liberated from the fangs of affliction, by the aid of your inestimable RED DROP, I address you. He tenders his sincere thanks and gratitude for the blessings he has received at your hands, having been radically cured, by magic, as it were, (using only part of a phial,) of a dangerous disease, to which he had rashly exposed himself in an unguarded hour. But having received both a cure and a lesson, he is, indeed, truly grateful for the one, and hopes to receive a salutary benefit from the other. I myself who witnessed its effect can testify to its merits, and, as a Christian philanthropist, most sincerely wish that the public may be made acquainted with its utility.

O pour thy balm, upon a wounded world
And let the banner of disease be furled;
Life's embers reillume—while yet one spark's alive
And bid the kindling glow of health revive;
Extend thy arm—the sufferer's pang appease
While groaning 'neath the demon of disease—
And grateful hearts shall all thy care repay,
When stern Affliction's chains are burst away
Defenceless youth!—if Passion's firm control
Has placed thee where dark waves of anguish roll,
Where sorrow reigns, and storms of Suffering fall,
Where Mercy's ear ne'er heeds thy piteous call—
Then flee to him who kindly holds for thee,
Those precious Drops that soothe and set thee free
And when thy just afflictions once are o'er,
Go, rescued "child of wrath, and sin no more."

Yours, respectfully,
E. G. PAGE.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Dr. MUSGRAVE reported from a Committee raised by the last Assembly to meet Committees of the New School and several other Presbyterian bodies the following document:

APRIL 18, 1869.

A meeting was held at the Mission House, No. 907 Arch-street, Philadelphia, of the following members of the respective Committees, appointed by the General Assemblies in pursuance of a request by the Convention held in Philadelphia Nov. 6, 1867, viz.; Rev. Drs. JOHN T. PRESSLY, DAVID R. KERR and WM. DAVIDSON, from the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church; Rev. Drs. M. ZEPHENIA M. HUMPHREY, from the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, (New School;) Rev. Drs. GEORGE W. MUSGRAVE and ALEX. T. MCGILL and Hon. ROBERT MCKNIGHT, from the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, Old School.

It was unanimously resolved, that union among the different denominations represented is very desirable, if the way be clear. It was then resolved that the basis agreed on by the Philadelphia Convention above referred to, be taken as a guide for the deliberations of this conference. Being altered and amended in several particulars, it was unanimously adopted in the following form, viz:

ARTICLE 1. The Old and New Testament Scriptures are acknowledged to be the inspired word of God and the only infallible rule of faith and practice.

ART. 2. The Westminster Confession of Faith, as the same has been modified by the Churches here represented, in its doctrines concerning the powers of the Civil Magistrate, together with the Larger and Shorter Catechisms, shall be received and adopted as containing the system of doctrine taught in the Holy Scriptures.

ART. 3. The United Church shall receive and adopt the Presbyterian form of Church Government.

ART. 4. First, it is the will of God that the Book of Psalms should be issued by the Church in His worship to the end of the world. And the united body shall, at the earliest practicable day, prepare as faithful and acceptable a version of those Psalms as may be for use in the Churches; second, any of the Churches desiring to use the psalms exclusively in the service of song shall always have the right, unchallenged, to do so.

It was then resolved, that these articles be submitted by the Committees composing this Conference to their respective Assemblies for consideration; and that, if they receive the favorable action of the Churches represented, the Assemblies be requested to appoint each a Committee of five to meet at Pittsburg, Penn., on the first Wednesday of August, A. D. 1869, at 11 o'clock A. M., to take into consideration such further questions as may be necessary to be decided, in order to a formal consummation of the union of the Bodies here represented.

The above is faithfully extracted from the minutes approved April 18, 1869.

ALEX. T. MCGILL, Secretary.

A request from the National Temperance Society that the ministers preach a temperance sermon on the last Sabbath of the year, was agreed to.

A semi-centennial celebration of the founding of the Board of Education was fixed for Tuesday evening next, and Rev. Drs. LORD, MCGILL, BEADLE and MCCOSH were invited to make addresses.

A notice was received from the New School Assembly that it has appointed as a Committee of Conference with this Assembly Rev. Drs. ADAMS, FISHER, SHAW and PATTERSON, and Messrs. STRONG, HAINES, DODGE, FARRAND and KNIGHT.

Dr. SAMUEL MILLER moved that the papers of the Committee on Reunion be placed in the custody of the Stated Clerk, to be used under the same rules with other papers, the property of the Assembly. This was carried.

The Committee on Devotional Exercises reported, through its Chairman, Dr. J. O. MURRAY, appointments for preaching next Sunday, the 23d inst, as follows:

Brick Church, Fifth-avenue and Thirty-seventh-street—10:30 A. M., Rev. Dr. M. W. Jacobus; 4 P. M., Rev. Dr. R. W. Patterson.

He was for many years a slave of HOWELL COBB, and is a most intelligent, earnest and eloquent preacher.

The New School—Second Day.

The New School General Assembly met in the Church of the Covenant, (Rev. Dr. PRENTISS',) at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning, and, after spending an hour in devotional exercises, opened the meeting for business at 9:30 o'clock, the Moderator, Rev. Dr. FOWLER, of Utica presiding.

After the opening prayer, the Moderator announced the standing committees. They are fourteen in number, as follows:

Mr. WALTER GRIFFITH, Secretary of Committee on Foreign Missions, read the report of the action of that Committee for the past year. The full amount contributed during the year was $108,196—788 churches furnishing no contributions. The report was referred to the Standing Committee on Foreign Missions.

Rev. Dr. PATTERSON moved that the report of the New School branch of the Joint Committee on Reunion, for 1867, be next taken up. Carried. Rev. Dr. WM. ADAMS, of New-York, read the report.

In 1866 each branch appointed a Committee of nine ministers and six ruling elders to meet and report the result of their deliberations to the next General Assembly of their respective branches. The Committees met in February and May, 1867, and, being subsequently continued, in March, 1868, and presented their final report to the Assemblies meeting at Albany and Harrisburg. The terms of reunion were adopted by the Assemblies, and submitted by them to the Presbyteries. Subsequently a deputation from the Old School Assembly suggested the striking out of a clause as to the explanation and illustration of the doctrines of the confession, but the Harrisburg Assembly (New School) being now reduced in numbers, could not entertain the suggestion. The New School Committee met in New-York in January, 1869, and issued an address, setting forth that the New School Presbyteries had approved the basis agreed upon by the two Assemblies, whole and entire, while the Old School Presbyteries had approved only the basis as proposed to be amended by the Committee from the Albany Assembly, and recommended that the proposed amendment of the Old School branch be agreed to, with an additional one striking out the whole of the tenth article.

Judge ALLISON, of Philadelphia, said that as a member of the New School Committee, he had, in answer to a query submitted to him by letter at the time, voted "no," as to the propriety of putting forth in an address the suggestions as to amending the basis in accordance with the wishes of the Old School Assembly. He desired this fact to be stated in the report, as a matter of historical accuracy.

On motion of Rev. Dr. FISHER, the report was referred to the Committee of Conference on Reunion.

The Moderator then announced the following-named special committees:

On Conference with Special Committee on Reunion, appointed by the Old School Branch—Rev. Drs. Wm. Adams, S. W. Fisher, R. W. Patterson, J. F. Stearns, and J. B. Shaw. Elders—Wm. Strong, Daniel Haines, Hon. Wm. E. Dodge, Jacob S. Farrand and John L. Knight.

On the Communication received from the Presbyterian Church in Canada, asking for a Representation in this Assembly—Rev. Samuel W. Fisher, D. D., Rev. George M. Maxwell, D. D., Rev. James B. Bonar.

On Overtures of last General Assembly—Revs. H. Dowling, D. D., A. Mitchell, C. S. Dunning. Elders—Nathan Lane, G. G. Roots.

REPORT OF HOME MISSIONS.

Rev. Dr. KENDALL, Secretary of the Standing Committee on Home Missions, then read the report of that Committee. The interest in the work has been greater during the year just closed than in any previous year. The anti-Papal immigration is increasing, and the disintegration going on among the Catholics is remarkable. The report alludes, too, to the great increase of Chinese immigration to this country, and especially to the Pacific coast. No agency can be more useful in bringing the Papists, Jews and infidels under the influence of the Gospel than the Home Mission organization. It could here reach more Chinese than in China and more negroes than in Africa. The report avers that though there are numbers of mission schools and Sabbath Schools established throughout the country, the new churches that rise up are remarkably few. Six missionaries died during the past year; 460 missionaries have been employed, of which number reports were received from 332. The number of conversions is reported at 2,400; additions to church membership, 3,745; 2,111 were received on personal application, and 1,640 by letter; 73 new churches have been formed during the year. The great need of which the report complains is that of more ministers for the West. The report was referred.

THE FREEDMEN'S HOME MISSIONS.

Rev. Dr. HATFIELD then read the report of the Freedmen's Department of the Committee on Home Missions. The Assembly of 1866 recommended the work of evangelizing the freedmen to the liberality of the churches. Itinerant and unauthorized parties took advantage of this recommendation, and visited the churches on their own responsibility, receiving much of the aid that would otherwise have been contributed to the direct and organized work of the Committee. What was thus gained to the general cause has been lost to the denomination. Ninety-nine teachers are now laboring among the freedmen in aid of this denomination, eighteen of whom were sent out by the New-York Committee. Of these latter one is in Charleston, five in Greenville, four in Columbia, and one in Chester, S. C.; three in James City, and four in Raleigh, N. C. Sixty-one denominational schools have been established, in all, among the freedmen. Contributions in their support have been received, however, from only about one-eighth of the denominational churches. One hundred and eighty-nine churches responded to the call of the Committee for money for educating the freedmen, while 1,401 gave nothing. The total receipts for the year were $15,906 74; expenses, $15,627 14; leaving $279 only to meet church requirements that will cost more than $3,000 for the coming year. The report was appropriately referred.

The permanent clerk then read an official announcement from the other Assembly of the appointment of a Committee of Conference on behalf of that organization, to meet with a like committee from this body, and consider the subject of reunion. On motion of Rev. Dr. BOOTH, the stated clerk was directed to acknowledge the receipt of the communication, and to inform the Old School Assembly that this body has already appointed a like committee.

The Assembly then took a recess, prayer having been first offered by the Moderator.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session was opened with prayer by the Moderator, at 2:30.

The Treasurer of the Committee on Home Missions, Mr. ED. H. LAMBERT, reported the receipts and expenditures of that Committee for the past year, as follows: Receipts, $162,420 82; expenditures, $149,675, leaving $12,745 79 to the credit of the denomination. Permanent fund invested in Government bonds, $6,800. The same gentleman reported the receipts for the Freedmen's Department for 1868-9, $15,941 49; expenses, $15,661 44, leaving $279 65 balance to new account. The average contribution per head throughout the Church is 7½ cents. The reports were referred to the Standing Committee on Home Missions.

REPORT ON EDUCATION.

Rev. Dr. JOHN G. ATTERBURY, Secretary of the Committee on Education, reported that 210 candidates for the ministry had been assisted by the Committee during the year—63 in theological, 103 in collegiate, and 44 in their academic course, besides 7 colored students. The receipts from contributions of the churches have been $24,037 97, being an increase of $6,530 38 over those of last year. Only 372 churches contributed to this fund, and the Committee appeal loudly for aid during the coming year. Of the 1,800 ministers on the rolls 400 are noted as being without charge. Twenty students are about to graduate from the Union Theological Seminary this year, who will enter at once on their ministerial field. The Treasurer's report from this Committee shows the receipts to have been, for the year, $26,569 79; expenses, $24,654 92.

REPORT ON PUBLICATION.

The Publication Committee, through the Secretary, Rev. JOHN W. DULLES, reported a cheering account of progress and usefulness. During the year eight tracts have been issued, eleven bound volumes and three library series. Prizes amounting to $1,650 are offered for manuscripts for books for the Sabbath-School libraries, to arouse the impenitent, to guide the inquirer and for the instruction of the young convert. The receipts of the Committee for the year were $66,214 68; expenses, $65,387 10; balance on hand, $827 58. The report was referred to the new Committee on Publication.

Dr. HOWARD CROSBY, from the Committee on Devotional Services, reported the assignment of ministers to the various churches in this City, Brooklyn and New-Jersey on Sunday next. The Committee recommend also that the morning prayer meeting be held hereafter at 9:45. The report was adopted.

An invitation was accepted to visit the rooms of the Executive Committee of the New-York City Missions, at the pleasure of the members, during their stay in this City.

Rev. Dr. DARLING, of Albany, Chairman of the Committee on Answers to Overtures of the last General Assembly, stated that out of 113 Presbyteries represented, only 71 had handed in their answers to the overtures. He suggested that the clerk read the names of the Presbyteries that have not yet answered. The clerk proceeded to call, and most of the Presbyteries represented promised, through their Commissioners, to report to the Committee without delay.

REPORT ON CHURCH ERECTION FUND.

Rev. FRANK F. ELLINWOOD, D. D., Corresponding Secretary of the Trustees of the Church Erection Fund, reported, on behalf of the Board, that fifty-nine churches had received regular, and twenty special aid from the fund during the past year. The amount of contributions received is $54,996, contributed by 329 churches, as against 290 churches for the preceding year. The average amount given to each church aided is $475, or $200 less than in 1867-8. Twenty-one churches gave over $500 each; and one Sabbath School contributed $1,000 during the year. Mr. JNO. P. CROSBY, Treasurer of the Church Erection Fund, reported the receipts of the year for that fund $80,400 48; expenditures, $77,851 06, leaving a balance of $2,549 42. Both these reports were appropriately referred.

REPORT ON MINISTERIAL RELIEF.

Rev. Dr. CHARLES BROWN, of Philadelphia, from the Committee on Ministerial Relief, read the report of that Committee, from which it appeared that, during 1868-69, 285 churches had contributed to the relief fund. There were, during the year, 66 applicants for relief—29 ministers, 33 widows, and 4 orphaned families, all of whom were aided, many being without the commonest necessaries of life. The report contained several interesting accounts of the sufferings of superannuated clergymen and their families. The Treasurer's report showed the receipts for the year to have been $23,612 03; expenses, $21,014 95—balance on hand, $2,597 09. The report was referred to the new Committee.

Rev. WILLIAM E. MOORE, of Philadelphia, read the report of the Trustees of the Presbyterian House, from which it appeared that the balance standing to the credit of that institution is $1,112 04. Report referred to the Publication Committee.

The Treasurer's (WM. A. BOOTH) account of the expenses of the last General Assembly was read, and referred to an auditing committee of two, Messrs. NATHAN LANE and S. WILLARD, M. D.

On motion of Dr. WM. ADAMS, the hour of 10:30 A. M., on Monday next, was fixed for the reception of delegates from corresponding bodies.

The Assembly then adjourned till 9:45 A. M. to-day, the closing prayer being offered by Rev. Dr. COX, (O. S.,) of this City.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

New-York.

On Tuesday next the corner-stone of a new Collegiate Dutch Church will be laid at the corner of Fifth-avenue and Forty-eighth-street. On the same day the one hundredth anniversary of the North Dutch Church, in Fulton-street, will be commemorated with imposing ceremonies. Many eminent ministers and laymen will be present on both occasions.

CATHARINE FLOOD, aged 42 years, died suddenly last evening in the water-closet of No. 69 Orchard-street. Death is presumed to have resulted from apoplexy, but an inquest will be held by a Coroner to-day.

At 11:30 o'clock last evening a fire occurred in the basement of the house No. 103 Orchard-street, owned and occupied by FLORENTINE SCHMIDT as a bakery, doing a damage of about $300, which is covered by insurance in the Globe and other City companies. The fire was caused by fat boiling over.

Rev. Dr. DOWLING, the well-known Baptist clergyman, has resigned his charge in this City, and accepted a unanimous and urgent invitation to the pastorate of the South Baptist Church, Newark, N. J. This is the church that was formerly under the care of Rev. Dr. HAGUE, now of Boston.

New-Jersey.

BERGER, the saloon-keeper, who was so severely injured in the recent fracas with Coroner VOLK, in Hudson City, is reported by his medical attendants to be still so unwell that it would be dangerous to remove him.

Mr. JOHN H. POILLON, of Rutherford Park, came to New-York on Thursday, and hired a girl at HENDERSON'S intelligence office, Nassau-street. She went at once to his house, but yesterday while Mr. and Mrs. POILLON were out, she decamped with a silver watch and some money. Last evening she was arrested in Jersey City, and held for examination.

LACKEY FALLON, a well-known character, was arrested last night by Constable BURNS, in Jersey City, charged with a desperate assault on PATRICK MORAN, at his house in Sussex-street, knocking him down and inflicting severe injuries. Justice CHAMBERS held FALLON to bail in $500.

At the Hudson County Court of Sessions yesterday, JAMES MACKENTHACKER was found guilty of larceny; sentence deferred. PHILIP MACKLER pleaded not guilty to assault, and was held in $200 bail. THOMAS BARKER, charged with being connected with the recent riot in Hudson City, pleaded not guilty to two indictments, one for riot and one for assault on JOHN CODE; bailed in two sureties of $500 each. JAS. O'BRIEN and THOMAS WHELAN were found guilty of burglary at Bergen; remanded for sentence.

While some men were fishing in the Passaic River, North Belleville, on Thursday, they dragged up the dead body of a man having marks of violence. It was identified as that of a quarryman, who left the night previous with considerable money in his pocket. The bridge-tender says he heard cries of murder on Thursday, early in the morning, but was afraid to look for the occasion of them.

The annual review of the Paterson Sunday Schools was held yesterday, four thousand children passing in procession through the streets.

Yesterday afternoon an engine, tender and four cars of a freight train ran over the track at the east end of Bergen Tunnel, on the Erie Railroad, detaining passenger trains four hours. A misplaced switch was the cause.
